IN CAMERON COUNTY.

Former Jefferson County Teacher Seeks County Superintendency.

The people of Jefferson county will learn with pleasure that Prof. D. B. Peterson is making a strong fight for the superintendency of the public schools of Cameron county. Prof. Peterson was principal of the schools of Summerville for four years and during that time showed himself to be an instructor of more than ordinary ability and a gentleman in every sense of the word. Prof. Peterson is only another example of those who refuse to sit down and wait for opportunities to come to them. He was born on a farm in Huntingdon county, his father being descended from the Scotch-Irish who early settled there and his mother from Major Chiggage, of Revolutionary fame Like all farm boys, what he got he had to hustle for. Working on a saw mill he earned enough money to attend the village academy and then taught school in the winter and worked on his father's farm until he was twenty-one. Being of an energetic disposition he did not remain long in the provisional certificate class and the year 1896 found him among those who graduated from the Cumberland Valley State Normal at Shippensburg. Since then he had been to Grove City, made a special study of history and nearly completed a four years' correspondent's course at Scranton Business College.

Mr. Peterson is one of the finest penmen that ever taught in Jefferson county and while at Summerville served as Secretary of the Jefferson County Principal's Association. Several years ago Mr Peterson went to Cameron county, where he married Miss Gertrude Potter, of Cameron. In all Prof. Peterson has taught fourteen years and has never failed to leave the salary higher than he found it. When his educational ability, his sterling honesty and uprightness of character, his skill as an organizer and his comprehensive grasp of everything relating to school work are taken into consideration, the hustling citizens of Cameron county can indeed be congratulated if they succeed in putting him at the head of their schools.—Brookville Republican.

Representative Barclay Busy.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, on Monday writes to his paper, giving an account of the lively preparation for the entertainment to be tendered United Senator Knox last evening. The correspondent pays the following reference to our energetic Representative:

"Representative Barclay, of Sinnamahoning, is an old soldier, is a member of the Pensions Committee, and as such, is besieged these days by old soldiers' widows to know how the bill increasing their pensions to $12 a month is coming along. The prize letter on this subject was received by him a day or two ago. It was written by an "old maid," at least she styled herself one, and inquired earnestly as to the prospect of the new pension bill becoming a law.

Her interest, she naively explained, arose from the fact that there was an old soldier in her neighborhood who wanted to marry her and as he was in poor health she was inclined to accept him if she was sure that the Senate amendment making the bill apply to all widows, whether they were married twenty years ago or twenty hours after the passage of the law. Her letter is now on file with the Pension Committee.

When the constituents of a Pennsylvania Congressman indicate their intention to keep him here during good behavior, he is apt to look about for a permanent Washington home. Some times this desire for a home in the national capitol seizes members who are not sure of being returned. Some of the handsomest homes in the city are those built or purchased by Pennsylvania Congressmen."

More Republican Candidates.

Since our last reference to the candidates for county office announcing their candidacy, two more have placed their bow to the public in the columns of the PRESS and may be found in the political column.

Mr. Marcus Lucore, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Member of Assembly, is an exemplary young man and popular with all who know him. He is a native of this county, being born in Portage township. He is the eldest son of the late Lemuel Lucore, who served the county as County Commissioner for three years, faithfully and well. We have known this candidate all his life and respect him very much. Should he be nominated we could support him cheerfully for he has always been a consistent Republican, and if not nominated, we believe will certainly support his opponent, Hon. Josiah Howard. Give the young man a fair show, this being his first venture in the political arena.

Another candidate for sheriff has shied his challenge into the middle of the ring. Anson O. Swartwood, formerly of Shippen township, but for several years a resident of Emporium, came to Cameron county in June, 1873 from Broome county, N. Y. He served in the union army for two years, after being rejected twice on account of the loss of one finger. Nothing daunted he insisted on a full examination and demonstrated to the examining board that he could handle any old gun and was told to get his "duds." "Ans" is now serving as deputy sheriff and and hopes to manage his own campaign, treat all competitors gentlemanly and get there if it is in the wood by the aid of his many warm supporters at the Primary on the 11th of April.

Knox Solid in Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, March 24—(Special)—Pennsylvania is solid for Knox. There has been no break in the lines and will be none. A complimentary reference to Secretary Taft at a Yale banquet in this city a few days ago, made by Representative John Dalzell, of Pittsburgh, was construted by some of the followers of Taft as a dash for the Taft bandwagon by the Knox supporters. It was heralded in some quarters as a desertion from the Knox camp.

But the following day Mr. Dalzell repudiated this construction of his speech and made a statement that left no doubt as to where he stands. He said:

"I did not use the language the newspapers have published. The utmost that can be said of any reference that I made to Secretary Taft as a presidential candidate was that if he should happen to be nominated and elected by the people, it would be a source of pride to Yale University and Yale men.

I expect to go as a delegate to the national convention in the interest of Senator Knox. Peunsylvaania has no other choice that Senator Knox for the presidency."

The misconstruction that was placed upon the speech of Mr. Dalzell has aroused the ire of the Knox supporters and has made them more determined than ever to do everything in their power to bring about the nomination of their candidate. Knox clubs are being formed and the work from now on will be pushed in earnest. This work will be along the lines that Senator Knox's friends have followed from the start, endeavoring to inform the people of his record and his views upon public questions in order to show his fitness for the position. The Knox campaign has been one of education. It has not resorted to bluff and bluster and its appeal has been made to the intellect of the people.

A Full House.

Every available seat at the Court House was occupied on Friday evening when Hon. S. B. Elliott gave his lecture on Forestry. The lecture was illustrated by means of a stereoptican owned and operated by Prof. A. M Hammers, of Punxsutawney, Pa. A strong appeal was made for systematic re-foresting and forest preservation and the audience was interested from start to finish.

Popular Medical Journal.

The publication of the Columbus Medical Journal has been resumed by Dr. C. S. Cara, the Dr., having withdrawn from the combination of several journals in which this journal was a factor. It is undoubtedly a boon to any home to have this journal on its reading table. Dr. Carr is a sincere and conscientious writer, and besides that the information contained in each number is worth many times the subscription price. Drop a line for a free sample copy to Dr. C. S. Eggs Typify Rebirth.

There are many superstitions in connection with Easter, and each country has a custom of celebrating it peculiar to itself, but while each varies, they all unite to observe the spirit of Springtime, and all Christians rejoice that the Lord of life forever won victory over death. Among the many quaint superstitions is the old Aryan one which typifies the return of the sun of Springtime by a golden egg—eggs being distributed at the early equinos by priests to strengthen the hopes of the people that the bleak, cold days of Winter might soon cease and a brighter time ensue.

The Persians believed that the earth was hatched from an immense egg on Easter morning; the Aryans also believed the sun to be a large golden egg which was constantly rolling nearer to the earth.

With the Jews, says the April Delineator, the egg became a type of their resue from the land of bondage, and in their Feast of the Passover, eggs occupied a conspicuous place in the service. It was their connection with the latter that finally caused them to be used by Christians the world over in celebrating Easter—the egg of resurrection into a new life, bringing a message of life from death, as it were.

The Tyrolese Easter egg is similar to our valentine, for besides being most beautifully tinted they have, in unique lettering, mottoes representing appropriate wishes for the recipient.

The priests of Italy bless all eggs brought to service on Easter morning, and each person carries his back home, where they are placed on a kind of altar arranged for the purpose, surrounded by lighted candles and often flowers; then each member of the family and any guests abiding with them, eat one of these holy eggs as a safeguard against disease and danger. They are hard-boiled before being taken to church.

Emporiumites in Panama.

Miraflores has been made the scene of much pleasant joking, as the place from which most Canal people say they want to be far away but to the boys of the Culebra Sunday School it proved tho scene of one of their most enjoyable Isthmian Outings.

On Washington's Birthday the Sunday school held a picnic. So that the day might be different in every way from the usual excursion the special train arranged for the occasion was run through the Culebra Cut instead of on the main line of the Panama railroad. Leaving the old Panama railroad station at 8:30 a. m., the train was run to Empire, switched down into the Cut and travelled over the Cut tracks to Pedro Miguel. From there it was run on the main line to Miraflores, where the boys left the train and walked about half a mile to the little know, but beautiful orange and cocoanut grove.

The secretary of the Sunday school, Mr. Souls, and his asssistant, Mr. Roper attended to the transfer of the provisions from the train to the grove. According to Harold L. Brooke and Clarence F. Rowland, the boys were fully occupied while the Secretary was attending to the luncheon. They thoroughly explored the grove and "after the boys had climbed and robbed the orange trees," Miss Myrtle Rowland and Miss Ethel Day prepared dinner for all. After the dinner was over and everybody was so full they could hardly walk, the races took place. After the races the boys went swimming in a nearby creek.

For their party of about one hundred people the grove visited by the Culebra boys made a desireable picnic ground and everyone in the party reports having had a good time.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, March 21, 1908.

President Roosevelt sent a letter to Representative Lilley this week, whose charges against the Electric Boat Company are being investigated by the House, in which he emphatically states that he had not authorized J. F. C. Archibald formerly a war correspondent, to make an investigation of submarine defenses on the Pacific coast. The letter was sent to Mr. Lilley in reply to a statement made by him that he had received an affidavit from Clement E. Adams, of Bridgeport, Conn., to the effect that Mr. Archibald had, in 1906 represented himself as a war correspondent for Collier's Weekly and that he had been appointed to visit the Pacific Coast and report the condition of the coast defenses there. Both the Adams affidavit and the President's letter of denial were presented to the Boutell investigating committee.

The legislative programme which President Roosevelt vigorously recommended in his special message of January 31, and will repeat in an epitome of that communication, is said to be seriously threatened by what is claimed to be the excessive demands of organized labor. The slate as arranged by Republican leaders of the Senate and House has been broken, and a new schedule of favored measures must be drawn. Senators Aldrich, Allison and Hale have had several conferences with Speaker Cannon on this perplexing problem. It is understood that the President has absolutely declined to sanction the demands of the labor organizations that the Sherman anti-trust act must mention them by name as exempt from its povisions, and must contain a clause giving them the right to utilize the boycott in dealing with their enemies. The Senate leaders and Speaker Cannon concurred in the views of the President, and no such sweeping recognition of labor will be permitted. It would be equivalent to class legislation of the most pronounced type.

The indorsement of Senator William B. Allison by the Iowa State Convention, on Wednesday last, was the source of much gratification to Senators, regardless of party. There is scarcely a man in the body who has not deprecated the fight that has been made on this veteran Senator with the object of retiring him to private life after almost half a century of labor in the public service. Senator Allison has served in the Senate for thirty-five years, and was a member of the House for eight years before coming to the Senate, and no man in public life today has had a more honorable career. As chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations he holds a commanding place in that body. His present term expires March 3, next, and his colleagues, regardless of party, hope that he will live to serve many more years.

The House Committee on Appropriations has decided not to report a bill appropriating $1,000,000 fer the relief of the survivors of the Slocum steamboat disaster, declaring that the claim has no foundation either in law, equity or precedent.

"The Arrival of Kitty."

Dainty Florence Forrest, the pretty actress in the comedy success "The Arrival of Kitty', which is soon to be seen here is uncommonly superstitious, notwithstanding her eminence as a songbird. A belief in the efficacy of mascots takes the form in Miss Forrest's case of wearing jewelled four-leaf clover pins. The little actress has no less than sixteen of these emblems of good luck, presents to her from friends. Miss Forrest's superstition also takes another form of being more than ordinarily superstitions in the matter of her dresses. While most woman-folk believe it good enough fortune to have a modest variety of gowns, Miss Forrest insists upon having two different sets of dresses for exclusive use in the comedy success "The Arrival of Kitty," in which she is one of the foremost members. Let every voter get out on April 11th and cast their ballots for Hon. Josiah Howard for Representative and Hon. C. F. Barclay for Congress.

Missed the Reception.

Pressing business engagements in Emporium prevented Hon. Josiah Howard, who was invited to the reception tendered United States Senator Knox, at Washington, D. C., last evening. President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft, Vice-President Fairbanks and many other prominent men were honored guests. Mr. Howard is also invited to the banquet to be given April 4th, 1908, to State Treasurer-elect, Hon. John O. Sheatz.

The most northerly point of land known is Cape Morris Jesup on an island north of Greenland. It was discovered by Commander Peary in 1900, and named after the president of the Peary Arctic club, Morris K. Jesup, who has lately died. Mr. Jesup was one of the most liberal patrons of science, art and exploration of his time. He not only gave generously to the cause of arctic exploration, but provided the money for many scientific expeditions organized to study antiquities in various parts of the world. He will be known for these things to a limited number for a few years, but every schoolboy will pronounce his name for no one knows how long when asked to name the most northern cape in the world. Only the latest geographies show it on their maps now, but they will all have it in a few years.

New York city, which hysterical imaginations are fain to compare with Nineveh, Tyre, Babylon, Sodom and what Mr. Dooley calls other ancient "metroluppuses," is not an unhealthy place, as great cities go. Last year the births exceeded the deaths by 40,000. This is a greater gain than appears for the same time in London, Berlin or St. Petersburg, and in Paris the death-rate is much greater than the birth-rate. New York is a healthy young child and the nation will succeed in bringing it up yet.

Mr. Edison has sent Count Leo Tolstoy a phonograph of the latest and most improved pattern, and in return will receive a cylinder registering Tolstoy's voice as he gives his interpretation of certain Bible texts. The time will come probably when the voices of all prominent personages will be thus preserved for the edification of later generations. For that matter, the voices of private individuals will doubtless be kept in the same way for the benefit of their families, just as universally as photographs are now.

Over 25 years ago London Truth established a doll competition. This year it was held in Albert hall, December 18 and 19. There were 26,000 toys and 4,000 dolls and 11,000 sixpences, all to be given to children in London hospitals, workhouses and infirmaries. For years a great friend of the poor children, Sir Francis Barry, gave the 11,000 sixpences; he died a year ago, but friends and relatives arranged that the pile of sixpences should be given just the same to the expectant children.

The American style of benevolence seems to be contagious. Other countries are feeling the effect. The will of Mrs. Rylands, widow of a wealthy cotton manufacturer of Manchester, England, leaves $2,365,000 to various charities, including $1,000,000 to a library on which she spent $7,500,000 during her life. This is suggestive of some of the princely gifts to philanthropy made in the United States, although the American record is as yet ahead of all others.

Dr. Lyman Abbott puts it thus neatly and pungently: "There is only one argument in favor of race track gambling, namely, that it improves the breed of horses. The answer to that argument is conclusive—it deteriorates the race of men."

Mr. Rockefeller's income is said to be over $1,000,000 a month. Perhaps he considers that he deserves a rather large salary for standing for the disagreeable things that are continually said of him.

From Sault Ste. Marie, Mich, comes word that President Roosevelt has expressed a favorable attitude in regard to an invitation to hunt moose and bear in the Canadian woods north of there after the expiration of his term of office. That will be a little change from hunting the bulls and bears.

A young Pennsylvanian has sued a girl for $5,000 for breach of promise Such a low valuation of his damaged affections shows a modesty that does not seem masculine.

A Brooklyn boarder laughed himself to death at the breakfast table. Is it possible that somebody got off that old wheeze about prunes?

DALZELL ON TARIFF

SIGNIFICANT SPEECH BY REPUBLICAN LEADER.

Revision, He Declares, Will Be "Up or Down," as Necessary, in Accordance with the Party's Theory of Protection.

Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania spoke with unusual effect in the house recently. Both sides of the chamber followed him with flattering attention, and were amply repaid. No speech of the session, so far, ranks it, and none to follow is likely to do so. It was all the weightier for the entire absence of rhetoric, or picture, being a closely reasoned deliverance bristling with facts and plain illustrations.

As Mr. Dalzell is a standpatter—one of the foremost champions of that side of the tariff question—that paragraph of the speech relating to the tariff possesses much value. Said the member from Pittsburg:

"Personally I do not believe that there is any necessity for a general revision of our tariff laws. I believe, however, that it is well to recognize the claims of those who think there should be revision, and I am inclined to believe that unless there should be a change of sentiment in the meantime the Republican convention, when it meets next June, will promise that the subject will be considered. If the Republican party shall prevail in the next election, I believe the tariff will be revised at a special session of congress following immediately upon the inauguration of the president.

"When revised, it will be in strict accordance with the Republican theory of protection, so as to furnish ample protection to every American industry and the wage of every American workman. If there are now duties that are no longer needed for protection they will be reduced or dispensed with. If there be places where such protection as I have described does not exist, either by reason of their absence of duties or by reason of their being too low, in the one case duties will be added and in the other they will be increased. In other words, the tariff will be revised up or down, as may be necessary to make it really protective."

Of course, the tariff is to be revised "in strict accordance with the Republican theory of protection," applied both to manufacturing products and to wages. There has never been any other suggestion from any truly representative Republican source Protection not as an incident, but as a definite object, has always been, and is to-day, the recognized shibboleth of the party. Promises made in the name of that cry have always been redeemed after victory, and legislation fashioned on them has always redounded to the great advantage of the country.

But note this in Mr. Dalzell's prediction: "The tariff will be revised up or down, as may be necessary to make it really protective." The revisionists can conceive of no duties that are now too low. Evidently Mr. Dalzell can, and does. So that at Chicago, and in the next congress if the Republicans prevail in November, the standpatters will have something to say on this point.

It is not to be forgotten, either, that the government needs, and will continue to need, a large revenue. Our expenses are heavy, and cannot be reduced safely in a material sum on any line. A reduction of customs duties will mean the necessity of finding the money elsewhere. And where? The supreme court has decided against an income tax, and while the member who cast the deciding vote has retired, it is not safe to assume that such legislation would pass muster before the court as now constituted.

Taxation is a big and a complex question, and we have it with us now in its most difficult aspect. Mr. Dalzell's warning should not escape the leaders of the revisionists.—Washington Star.

States' Rights and Treaties.

Secretary Taft, in his address to the Brooklyn Bar association, took a positive stand on the question of harmonizing the powers of the president with the obligations of states to abide by the treaties entered into by the federal government. Until this question of states' rights is properly adjusted it leaves a weak place in the government, both as to domestic government and international relations. "It puts our country, now a world power, and entering into treaties with every other government on earth," says Mr. Taft, "in the position of promising that subjects of other countries shall be properly treated, and then of having no means of carrying out this promise, or of punishing those who violate it."

The United States is insistent that its citizens shall be treated with due consideration in all parts of the world. It would have little respect for another republic or monarchy that would enter into treaty obligations to give such treatment, and then be unable to govern its affairs relating to American citizens in some particular state or province. The United States must in some way empower the president to enforce treaty obligations in every state in the union. And when this subject is placed before congress it should have the support of every representative of every state. The nation is bigger than the state. And the nation, and the nation, only, is considered in international relations.—Kansas City Star.

WILL MAKE DEMOCRATS THINK.

Mixed Advice That Is Sent to the East from Denver.

Advice that comes from Denver with the weight of expert authority conveys mixed information to the Democrats who have been cherishing expectations of a high time at the Democratic national convention. Two former Pennsylvania Democrats now occupying official places in that city send this cogent warning:

"Delegates should remember that the city is a mile up in the air—that is, 5,280 feet above the sea level; that they should not chase the car, should not become excited or be unduly active, and that two drinks of whisky will 'light them up' as much as nine in another atmosphere. In other words, this high altitude contributes to quick heart action—a pumping heart, as it is called—and Denver's rarefied atmosphere demands on the part of aliens conservative movements, little or no exhilaration, wholesomely quiet thought and action, and especially the minimum of stimulants, alcoholic and nicotine."

As to the most salient point in this advice it may be written down as good or bad, according to individual views. Some appalling reports are abroad as to the scale of charges that is likely to prevail at Denver hotels. But if two drinks of whisky in Denver will do the work of nine in the more sluggish atmosphere of New York or Pittsburg the Democrats may think that the cost of nominating Bryan will be much reduced. But what if the Denver saloonkeepers should adopt the corporate principle of "value of service" and charge as much for two drinks as the nine would cost on the lowlands?

But when Democratic authority prescribes "quiet thought and action, conservative movements and no exhilaration" for a Democratic national convention it introduces the irreconcilable. How could Bryan have ever been nominated by the "Crown of thorns and cross of gold" speech on that regime? True, he may not need that hullabaloo to get the nomination this time. But quiet thought over the nomination of a Democratic candidate who has in the past achieved the revolution of getting a Republican senator elected from Kentucky is calculated to produce chilliness in the Democratic extremities.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

American Foodstuffs Abroad.

"What we want," said the president of the American Reciprocal Tariff league, "is such commercial relations as will enable western farmers to supply food products to the millions of Europe. Both Germany and France are ready to do business with us upon this proposition." Well, are not western farmers already supplying food products to the millions of Europe? It must be that they are, for our surplus food products are finding foreign markets at the rate of nearly $300,000,000 a year. Most of them go to Europe. Certainly none of the surplus stays at home. There is no glut in the American market. France and Germany are already taking their share. They might take more, perhaps, if their own food producers did not insist upon first marketing at home at high prices all that they have to sell. It is doubtful that the agrarian or land owning interests of Germany and France will consent to have the tariff bars removed even though German and French manufacturers should thereby be enabled to swamp the American market with their products. The plea for larger markets for American foodstuffs is mostly a fraud and a snare.

Danger of Bryanism.

Republican campaign prevision cannot safely stop with the Democratic party's defined strength or with a count of the states which Mr. Bryan did not carry in his two presidential efforts. This year there is a difference which weakens the force of old figuring. All the discontented elements, all the loosely attached elements and all the Republican stay-at-home elements are to be considered as possible Democrats. It is not to be forgotten that each of the Bryan propositions, however chimerical it may be in the judgment of the well informed, has a certain attraction for voting masses, and has been advanced with a not wholly illusioned view to that practical, if temporary, political effect. Popular faith in settled forms and principles of government is always shaken in times of sluggish industry. No man is able to prophesy how far even greenbackism will be accepted by the spirit of "anything-for-a-change" which will be present during the coming campaign.

Coming to the Front.

The close approach of a protective tariff system for Great Britain has brought a new condition to the notice of the public over there, and it may have a positive effect on the United States. An English trade paper reports that a company manufacturing a popular safety razor in the United States is planning to establish a factory in England, to conform with a British patent law which provides that certain portions of patented articles offered for sale there must be manufactured on English soil. The machinery is being imported from America, but the work is to be done by British subjects. That may be expected of other industries if the old free trade country goes into protective tariff, as it has the appearance of doing now more than ever for years. The protective politicians are coming to the front rapidly.—Worcester Telegram.

A $100,000 CONFLAGRATION

GRAND PACIFIC HOTEL AT CHICAGO PARTIALLY DAMAGED.

No Lives Were Lost, Although Many of the Guests Were Compelled to Make Hasty Exits.

Chicago, Ill.—Fire, resulting from crossed electric light wires, damaged the Grand Pacific hotel Friday afternoon to the extent of $100,000, and for a time threatened to destroy the seven-story building at Clark street and Jackson Boulevard.

The flames were mostly confined to the top floor. No lives were lost, although many of the guests were compelled to make hasty exits by the fire escapes. Only three persons were injured. Two of these, standing in the crowd in front of the hotel, were slightly cut by falling glass. The third was a fireman, Walter English, who fell from the fire escape and suffered a fracture of the left arm.

The fire was discovered by James Ryan, a mechanic, who was at work on the roof of the building. Two weeks ago, a portion of the hotel smoke stack was blown down by a gale, and Ryan was in charge of the gang of workmen which was putting up a new stack. He was placing a block under one corner of a derrick when a small tongue of flame shot up into his face. He at once gave the alarm.

When the first smoke rolled along the roof and drifted down into the hotel court, it was thought to come from the defective stack. As the fire was in a corner of the upper floor, Manager E. A. Whipple of the hotel for some time felt sure that there was no fire. He was soon informed by a bell boy, however, that flames had broke through the roof at the northwest corner of the building, and he immediately issued orders to warn all guests to leave their rooms and come to the office.

The telephone switch board was at once put in requisition and most all guests were advised to leave their rooms. Waiters and other hotel attendants hurried through the hallways, giving additional warning and directions. The clouds of smoke which poured out of the building were dense and pungent, filling stores and offices for several blocks to the north and east of the hotel. The smoke darkened the halls so that many guests came down the fire escapes on the east, south and west sides of the building.

NATIONAL LAWMAKERS.

The house discussed an amendment to restore pension agencies, which the bill drops in the interest of the consolidation of pension disbursements in Washington.

SENTIMENT AND DEMAND

Spring Jobbing Trade Has Passed Its Zenith with a Larger Trade Than Was Expected in All Lines.

New York City.—Improvement in sentiment and in actual demand continues, but it proceeds under the check rein of conservatism, which limits buying to small lots of staple goods.

Spring jobbing trade has apparently passed its zenith, with a total trade larger perhaps than was expected some months ago, but smaller by far than a year ago.

In industrial lines there is a good deal of irregularity. While iron and steel prices have been reaffirmed, pig iron shows weakness, despite more inquiry. Finished products note most activity in seasonable goods such as than a year ago. Fall trade is four to six weeks late in opening up.

A FATHER'S BLOOD SAVES

Transfusion Performed for First Time Saves Life of Child.

New York City.—An operation involving the transfusion of blood into the veins of a child five days old, performed by Dr. Alexis Carroll, head of the Rockefeller institute, has attracted wide attention among physicians. The child was suffering from a little known disease, one of the symptoms of which is a weakening of the artery walls so that the blood escapes from all parts of the body.

The child's father, Dr. Adrian V. S. Lambert, volunteered to give his own blood, and one of his arteries was connected with the baby's blood vessels. The effect was instantaneously beneficial and the little one is now not only out of all danger, but rapidly gaining flesh.

Takes All His Property.

Bucyrus, O.—Peter Grimm, 54 years of age, and Mrs. Sarah Gleason, aged 47 years, were maried here Thursday by Justice Myers. The bride had the bridegroom sign over his property to her on the morning of the wedding, subject to his life interest.

Aged Paupers Have Gold.

Bellefontaine, O.—While aged John Bright and his wife were being taken to the poorhouse they were heard to talk about buried gold They were returned to their home and it was found that they had several thousand dollars hidden away.

AN ADDED ATTRACTION.

"Yes, he's awfully good looking, but he's very dissipated, and has led a fearful life. Mother says he's the sort of man we must have nothing whatever to do with."

"Oh! my dear, I can hardly wait to meet him."

Proofroom Horror.

"Well, what do you want?" the proofreader asked,
As he eyed the intruder with doubt.
"I'm just a loafin'," answered the hyphen,
And the proofreader hustled him out.

Taking In the Soil.

The automobile was going 50 miles an hour.

"We are now passing through a beautiful part of the country," shouted the chauffeur in the front seat.

The tourist swallowed another pint of grit and dust.

"H'm!" he ejaculated, between coughs, "it seems as though the country is passing through me."—Chicago Daily News.

Cause of Monotony.

Editor—Mr. Paragraph, I wish you wouldn't write so many jokes about men who can't pay their bills; they are funny enough in a way, but so many of them are a little monotonous. Can't you get your mind on some other subject?

Mr. Paragraph (thoughtfully)—Perhaps I could—if I had a little larger salary.

Soft Fall.

Jinks—I never had much use for feather beds. I don't consider them healthy.

Blinks—Well, I know a man who says he would like to see them all over the country.

Jinks—Indeed! Who is he?

Blinks—Why, an inventor of flying machines.—Chicago Daily News.

A Little Uncertain.

"I suppose that there was a very cultured audience at the performance of one of Sophocles' plays in New York."

"I'm not so sure of that."

"What makes you dubious?"

"The fact that I heard several calls for the author."—Baltimore American.

Not Capable.

At the close of a lengthened and bitter wrangle between a judge and a prominent counsel the former said: "Well, sir, if you do not know how to conduct yourself as a gentleman, I'm sure I can't teach you." To which the barrister mildly replied, "That is so, my lord!"

An Anomaly.

Agitator—Don't you know, sir, that in this country the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer?

Patrick—Then it's rich Oi must be, for O'im a moighty soight better off than Oi waz when Oi landed.—N. Y. Weekly.

Extra Particular.

"Isn't he a man who always prides himself on doing the appropriate thing?"

"Is he? When he fell overboard in that little bight, he began to swim dog-fashion."—Baltimore American.

Important.

Redd—A new rose has been called "the automobile," I understand.

Greene—Oh, I say! How about the odor?—Yonkers Statesman.

Proud of His Ancestors.

SENATOR WHYTE CROSSES DIVIDE

THE MARYLAND SENATOR HAS BEEN IN PUBLIC LIFE SINCE 1847.

HE WAS 83 YEARS OF AGE

Since That Year Senator Wm. Pinckney Whyte Has Held Nearly Every Office in the Gift of the People of His State.

Baltimore, Md. — United States Senator William Pinckney Whyte died at his home in this city Tuesday night. He was taken ill while in Washington last Thursday and returned as soon as possible. Erysipelas developed and his condition became worse. About 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the senator suffered a sinking spell, but recovered wonderfully and was conscious until the final convulsion that ended in his death at 7:05 p. m.

Senator Whyte, who was affectionately referred to and addressed as "Governor" by nearly every one who knew him, has been in public life since 1847. He was born in this city August 9, 1824, and was the son of Joseph and grandson of Dr. John Campbell Whyte. His maternal grandfather was the famous lawyer and orator, William Pinckney. He engaged in business for two years, following which he graduated at law at Harvard in 1845. His political career may be said to have begun with his election to the house of delegates of the Maryland legislature of 1847-8, since which time he has held nearly every office in the gift of the people of his state. He was state comptroller in 1853-55 and ran for congress in 1857, but was defeated. He was a delegate to the national convention of 1868 and the same year was appointed United States senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Reverdy Johnson upon the latter's appointment as minister to Great Britain. He was governor of Maryland in 1871-74 and in the following year was elected United States senator. He became mayor of Baltimore in 1881 and attorney general of Maryland in 1887. He was chairman of the commission which framed the new charter of this city, serving in that capacity in 1897 and 1898. In 1900 he became city solicitor. The then governor, Edwin Warfield, appointed him United States senator in 1906 to fill, until the meeting of the present legislature, the unexpired term of the late Senator Arthur P. Gorman and the current legislature soon after assembling elected him Senator Gorman's successor for the term ending March 3, 1909.

EASY VICTORY FOR BURNS

Jem Roche, the Irish Champion Knocked Out in the First Round.

Dublin, Ireland. — Tommy Burns the American heavy weight champion made short work of Jem Roche, the Irish champion, in their contest Tuesday evening at the Theatre Royal, for the world's heavyweight championship. Practically only one blow was struck Burns knocking Roche out when hardly more than a minute of the first round had been completed by a short hook to the jaw. So quickly did the end come that the great crowd which filled the theatre, in the expectation of seeing the Irishman put up a good fight for the title, hardly realized what had happened.

When the men entered the ring it was evident that the sluggish Roche was no match for the more experienced Burns. They sparred for less than a minute, the Irishman acting altogether on the defensive and the American endeavoring to find an opening. Then Burns feinted and quickly put a short sharp right to the jaw and Roche went down. He was badly dazed and although he struggled to regain his feet was unable to do so before the fatal ten was counted. Immediately after the count Roche got his feet, but staggered about the stage. When he had recovered himself he went over to congratulate the winner.

ADMIRAL EVANS TO RETIRE

Rear Admiral Sperry Will Command Atlantic Fleet When It Leaves San Francisco.

Washington, D. C.—Rear Admiral Chas. S. Sperry will be commander-in-chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet when it leaves San Francisco in July to encircle the globe. This important detail was decided upon by President Roosevelt and his cabinet Tuesday.

Rear Admiral Evans, on his personal request, will be relieved of the command at the conclusion of the big naval review at San Francisco, May 8. Admiral Evans retires in August.

To Rear Admiral Thomas comes the honor of commanding the fleet on its visit to Puget Sound, and until the homeward journey begins. He has been second in command during the voyage, and retires in October. These retirements make possible two promotions to the grade of rear admiral, and these are to be filled by the advancement of Capt. Seaton Schroder and Captain Richard Wainwright, who will command respectively the third and fourth squadrons of the fleet, and Rear Admiral Emory the second.

Boy Pugilist Killed.

Philadelphia, Pa. — In an amateur boxing tournament following the regular performance at the Bijou theatre here Tuesday night Willie Robinson, aged 18 years, was killed while boxing with Charles Wolf, of the same age.

Three Men Killed.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Three men were killed here Tuesday afternoon by the falling of a heavy steel beam that was being placed in position for railroad elevation. The men were in the employ of the Kelly-Atkinson Construction Co. of Chicago.

TOOK STROLL ON NEW BRIDGE

LARGEST CANTILEVER STRUCTURE IN WORLD TRAVERSED.

A Single Steel Girder Now Links New York and Long Island—Commenced in 1901.

New York. — The great cantilever structure over East river known as Blackwells Island bridge which was constructed at a cost of nearly $25,000,000, was traversed its entire length by pedestrians Wednesday for the first time. Alderman Timothy P. Sullivan, as the personal representative of Mayor McClellan, whom illness kept from participating in the event, headed a delegation of city officials and representatives of the construction companies which have taken part in the erection of the structure, across a narrow foot bridge built on top of the single steel girder which now links the New York and Long Island ends of the bridge. This girder, 80 feet in length and weighing 20 tons, was fitted in place Wednesday in the presence of the delegation. Midway on the foot bridge, Alderman Sullivan broke a bottle of champagne over the rail, an American flag was broken out and whistles on river craft tooted a salute.

Work on the bridge was commenced in 1901 and has been carried on constantly since then. There have been many fatalities among the workmen employed on the great highway. When completed the bridge will be the largest cantilever structure in the world. It will be double decked and 8,449 feet in length. The length of the main span is 1,182 feet between the towers. On the lower deck, projecting beyond the trusses, there will be a roadway wide enough for four three-horse teams to pass abreast. On each side of and apart from this roadway there will be two trolley tracks.

In the middle of the upper deck, between the trusses, there are to be two elevated railroad tracks and two promenades, each eleven feet wide. The six tracks across the bridge are estimated to have a capacity of 150,000,000 passengers a year under ordinary conditions of traffic.

HELD PRISONERS BY FLOOD

Masons Penned in by Water Caused from Cloudburst—Damage Wrought in Other Places.

Pittsburg, Pa. — A flooded street following a cloudburst Wednesday night made prisoners of officers of the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania Royal Arch Masons, charter members of a new chapter and guests, swelling the total number to 100. The new chapter was instituted at Wilmerding, a suburb, and the work began Wednesday afternoon. The party left Masonic Temple to attend a dinner at the Central hotel, across Westinghouse avenue. During the dinner a cloudburst occurred at East McKeesport, a mile away, and soon a torrent of water from 3 to 4 feet deep swept through the street between banquet hall and lodge room. An hour later wagons were secured to haul the party across the street and the lodge work was resumed.

Much damage was done by the cloudburst and accompanying storm, and a number of houses and barns were struck by lightning. The storm was general in this section. At Irwin three buildings were struck by lightning and flooded streams tied up the Irwin-Greensburg Electric railroad. In Washington county many buildings were struck by lightning and burned. Three gas well derricks were blown down at Zollarsville.

WAS TIRED OF THIS LIFE

A Handsome Brooklyn, N. Y., Woman Shoots Herself.

New York. — Miss Helen Daenzer, who conducted a school of instruction in embroidery and other fine needle work in Brooklyn, shot herself to death Wednesday night in a telephone booth after summoning an acquaintance to care for her body. The report of the revolver and the dying groans of the suicide carried over the wire to the man who answered her call, but before he could reach the address given the woman was dead. Across a writing pad in the telephone booth she had written: "Somebody will come to identify me. Excuse me for making all this trouble."

Miss Daenzer was a handsome woman of 30 years and had a profitable business. She made her home with her mother and a brother. She was married a year ago, but three months after the wedding she separated from her husband. She lately complained of severe headaches to her mother and only on the ground of ill health can she account for the suicide.

To Remit Orchard's Sentence.

Caldwell, Idaho. — Stating that he believed Harry Orchard, in his testimony in the trials of William D. Haywood and George A. Pettibone of the Western Federation of Miners for the murder of ex-Gov. Steunenberg, told the exact truth, attempting to conceal nothing, Judge Fremont Wood, who presided at both trials, Wednesday recommended that the state board of pardons remit Orchard's sentence of death. This does not necessarily mean imprisonment for life. The sentence of death was pronounced in accordance with Orchard's plea of guilty.

Grover Cleveland's Birthday.

Lakewood, N. J. — After a quiet family celebration of his 71st birthday anniversary, Grover Cleveland, for eight years president of the United States, was able to say Wednesday night that he was in better health than for some time past.

Defrauded Life Insurance Co.

Los Angeles, Cal. — Sheriff A. B. Adams of Cohoes, N. Y., arrived in this city having in custody Ira J. Bayliss, who is said to be wanted in New York on a charge of defrauding the Prudential Life Insurance Co. out of many thousands of dollars.

INSURANCE CLERK SHOOTS HIMSELF

"WELL, HERE GOES," AS HE FIRED A BULLET INTO HIS BRAIN.

SON OF INSURANCE MAN

Woman In Case was Formerly Wife of Prominent Politician—Had Given Him Up on Several Occasions.

New York City.—Herbert Kremer, son of President William N. Kremer, of the German American Insurance Co., Thursday night shot and killed himself in the apartments of Mrs. Lafayette B. Gleason, who was formerly the wife of the clerk of the state senate and secretary to the state Republican committee. Mrs. Gleason said later that Kremer had become despondent following the termination by her of their wedding engagement. Kremer was 30 years old and had been employed as a clerk in the office of an insurance broker. He renewed an earlier acquaintance with Mrs. Gleason when she secured a divorce two years ago.

A few months ago, Mrs. Gleason said, she induced him to enter a sanitarium at Stamford, Conn. A few weeks later he left the place and in December went to an institution at White Plains. Five weeks ago, she said, she broke their engagement, and on Monday last he came to her apartments at the St. Charles hotel and attempted suicide by taking poison. Thursday she said she met him by appointment to arrange a matter of business and Thursday night he accompanied her to her rooms. He had been there but a few moments, according to Mrs. Gleason, when, exclaiming: "Well, here goes," he fired a bullet into his brain.

WILL VOTE BY DISTRICTS

Such is the Decision of the Indianapolis Convention of Miners.

Indianapolis, Ind.—With a few changes the convention of United Mine Workers of America Thursday adopted its scale committee's report. The policy is that the separate districts may adopt wage contracts with their operators; that such contracts shall be for one year and that the scale shall provide for "not less than the present wage rates."

The feature of the session was the speech of President Mitchell in support of the scale committee's report. He said: "Your president-elect and myself, about to retire, represent so far as possible the fundamentals of trade unionism. We have brought you what everybody said we would not do—we brought an unanimous report to this convention. We have gone almost so far as to beg the operators to meet us—four times we asked them. They have refused. In view of their attitude the best course to pursue is to adopt the plan of district contracts.

"I want you who have long regarded my advice in good and bad times to follow me now and adopt this report. If you make changes you will ruin the document.

"Let us go out of here united. If we have to make fights by districts, we can do it, and the operators know what kind of a fight we can put up. We will win if you adopt this report."

DETECTIVES PUT IN JAIL

Chicago Police Arrest Four Men Who Attempted to Blackmail Officials.

Chicago, Ill.—Four so-called "private detectives" were arrested on Thursday night charged with having attempted to blackmail Mayor Busse, Chief of Police Shippy and Alderman J. M. Forman of the third ward out of sums approximating $100,000. Hardy Schindler, John R. Mareney, William J. Mullaney and Charles Huxhold are the prisoners. They claim that they had been employed by a reform organization, composed of southside clergymen, to investigate vice and crime conditions in the district enclosed by 26th and 35th streets, and it is charged by the city authorities that the men tried to obtain money from them by threatening to publish alleged exposures of conditions in that district. The ministers who compose the reform organization assert they believe the men to be reputable private detectives.

Baltimore Again Visited by Fire.

Baltimore, Md.—A destructive fire broke out at 3:20 Thursday afternoon on the sixth floor of the immense building of Henry Keidel & Co., wholesale dealers in hardware, guns and ammunition, 405-407 W. German street. Six alarms were sounded, calling all the big fire companies to the scene. The store is in the wholesale district and adjoining buildings housing great quantities of merchandise and hundreds of workmen. The police reserves were called out and streets near the fire cleared of people. It is feared that if the fire gains headway it will be unsafe and impossible for firemen to work, because of the probable igniting of the ammunition and explosives. The greatest alarm prevailed in the district.

Entered a Plea of Guilty.

Logan, Ia.—The Illinois Central Railroad Co. on Thursday entered a plea of guilty to the indictment returned at the last term of the district court in this city, charging the road with illegal sales of liquor on a buffet car. A fine of $300 was imposed.

Sailed for Magdalena Bay.

San Diego, Cal.—With about $100,000 worth of provisions and between 400 and 500 sacks of mail for the battleship fleet, the supply ship Culgea sailed for Magdalena Bay Thursday.

Making "Cinnamon" Canaries.

"Cinnamon canaries are the best known of a mere handful of instances where it is possible to change the color of a bird or animal by food. The trick has long been known to fanciers, and each claims to have his own secret for working the miracle, but the process is really simple and consists in abundantly sprinkling the birds' food with red pepper. It is a troublesome process, for a large number of birds either refuse to eat or suffer from deranged digestion. Even of those who take the diet not more than a third or a half will show the color effects. The only inducement to the fanciers to produce this curious change is that once so altered these birds have an artificial value. Dealers will tell you that in addition to the red pepper they give other red articles of food, such as tomato skins, slices of beet and the skins of red apples or cranberries. But this is merely an innocent fallacy, based on the idea that the coloring matter of the food is transferred bodily to the feathers.—Collier's Weekly.

Confession of Mouth.

A city dentist, defending his profession as a whole from the double charge of charlatanism and "graft," made this interesting declaration:

"While such things exist in dentistry, as in all businesses, there is far more of it among gilt edged practitioners than along the modest level where, for example, I work. Some men enjoying the most fashionable clientele are the rankest frauds either in ability or in representation of work done.

"But a dentist never can fool a dentist. Often a patient will get into my chair for the first time, and in a casual conversation I will ask who last treated the teeth. The name always comes, and a glance tells me whether the man has worked honestly or dishonestly. I have sized up some of our 'best' dentists in that way in half a minute, and many a reputation has crumbled in my estimation.

"A dentist can fool the people, but he can't fool a dentist."—New York Globe.

The two eyes really see two objects. If the two forefingers be held, one at the distance of one foot, the other two feet in front of the eyes, and the former be looked at, two phantoms of the latter will be observed, one on each side. If the latter figure be regarded, two phantoms of the nearest finger will be observed mounting guard, one on either side.

Mrs Aug. Extrom, living on Sixth St., Emporium, Pa., says: "I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and I have to do so on a good many occasions For a long time I was in a miserable condition, suffering with backaches and sharp pains in the regions of my kidneys. I was restless at night and was subject to headaches and dizzy spells. At times my feet would swell. I was unable to obtain relief uhtil I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured the remedy from L. Taggart, the druggist, they proved to be just what my system required By the time I had finished the contents of the firrt box there was a great improvement in my condition. I continued with Doan's Kidney Pills until I had used three or four boxes and by that time the backache had completely vanished. I was no longer troubled with headaches and dizzy spells and my general health was much improved. I am a great advocate of Doan's Kidney Pills and strongly recommend this remedy to anyone suffering with kidney or bladder trouble."

Are Patent Medicines Frauds?

We are often asked the above question, and our answer has invariably been that no medicine that gives satisfactory results could be fraudulent. We could not afford to sell fraudulent medicines. Our business depends on pleased customers—in fact any business does. Therefore, we would take an enormous risk did we not fulfil every promise made our customers. We are very careful of what we guarantee, and when we do guarantee an article we must know it pretty well—what it contains and how it is made. We have in mind the Rexall line of remedies, particularly Rexall Mucu-Tone, of which we are selling large quantities at this time of the year. Mucu-Tone is one article that we can recommend over our counter and know that ninety-eight per cent. of its purchasers are going to be benefited and will return to our store pleased customers. Mucu-Tone is a positive cure for internal scrofula or what is commonly called Catarrh. It is without a doubt the peer of all tonics for any one who is suffering from a run-down condition, can't work, feels constantly tired or suffering from the more plainly described symptoms of Catarrh—such as stopping of the nose, cold in the head or bad cough."

It must be remembered that Catarrh is not confined to the nose and throat. It usually starts there, but it leads more often to serious trouble, particularly the wasting of tissues, as in the case of little Miss Dillon, of Albany. Here is a letter from her father:

"My little girl had catarrh so badly that the disease had begun to eat into the cartilage of the nose. Snuffs and instruments failed to do more than give temporary relief. I saw the advertisements of Rexall Mucu-Tone, but I could not believe that anything taken in the stomach could cure the sore membranes of the nose. However, I took advantage of your free trial offer and my girl began taking your remedy according to directions. I want to say right here that Mucu-Tone is certainly the greatest medical discovery of the times, and to thank you for the liberal offer that first induced me to give it a trial. Muco-Tone has cured my daughter's catarrh completely. The discharge has stopped altogether, and her breath is as sweet as can be. Again thanking you, MATT. DILLON, 24 N. Swan St., Albany, N. Y."

We are selling a large trial bottle of Mucu-Tone for fifty cents on the famous Rexall guarantee of your money back if you are not satisfied. We promise that one bottle will put flesh on your bones and bring new vitality to your system.

A REASON

The United Drug Company, manufacturers of the Rexall Remedies, for whose preparations we are agents in this city, make 200 remedies, one for each ill. Each one is especially prepared to cure one disease, and that only. This is an age of specialists. You don't contract with a plumber to build your whole house, do you? Why should you contract with one proprietary medicine to cure all your troubles?

Oftentimes you run across a building contractor who has a separate plumbing department, his own plastering department, and so on, all of which dovetail together and build the house. This is just what the United Drug Company is doing for you in the medicine line. They have cut down profits; they manufacture Rexall Remedies for over 2,000 retail druggists. These druggists are the only intermediate profit that stand between The United Drug Company and the patient.

Could the United Drug Company, of which we are a member, afford to make one poor medicine in this line? Does not common sense tell you that one poor medicine would ruin the sale of the other 199 preparations? If you bought a Rexall preparation and it didn't do for you what we claim it will, would you buy another one of our articles? We believe not. Therefore each preparation must be good—it is good. We who are in the drug business know the formulas of these Rexall preparations. We believe in them so implicitly that we stand back of them, with our guarantee to refund you your money if they do not benefit you.

The secret of a good baked potato is first a sound structure, then a smooth surface, a well-scrubbed skin, and a hot, but not too hot oven; if baked too quickly the part nearest the skin chars, but when just right, the thin outer skin will peel off easily, leaving a mass of snowy meal inside. Bake from thirty to forty minutes and when soft on pressure remove and serve at once—The Delineator.

Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter, as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c, at all drug stores.

TEN YEARS OF BACKACHE.

Thousands of Women Suffer in the Same Way.

Mrs. Thomas Dunn, 153 Vine St., Columbus, Ohio, says: "For more than ten years I was in misery with backache. The simplest housework completely exhausted me. I had no strength or ambition and suffered headache and dizzy spells. After these years of pain I was despairing of ever being cured when Doan's Kidney Pills came to my notice and their use brought quick relief and a permanent cure. I am very grateful."

Good Eye, Cuchuillin!

Who can set bounds to the soaring imagination of the Celt? An enthusiastic New Yorker recently watching a game of hurling—which resembles lacrosse—between stalwart teams, was moved to ask President Conway of the Irish Athletic association how far a good man could drive the ball.

"Well, I'll tell you," responded Mr. Conway, with a twinkle in his eye that contradicted his serious speech. "In the good old days when Cuchuillin was champion of Ireland, the king and all the nobility were assembled at the great games of Tailtin. Cuchuillin struck up a hurley ball into the sky, and then walked off to his pavilion and took a drink of potheen, and strolled back to the spot in good time to catch the ball on his hurley."—Harper's Weekly.

Leisure to Burn.

"My dear," asked the overworked business manager of his wife, as he tried to write a check for her, answer the telephone, receipt the expressman, and give instructions to a floor-walker, at one and the same time: "My dear, in that 'Great Beyond,' do you suppose any of the elegant leisure, of which the preacher tells us, will fall to my lot?"

"Sure, John," answered his wife, sweetly, "you will doubtless have leisure to burn."——Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

FOR FRUIT PICKERS.

Device Which Holds Basket and Leaves Hands Free to Work.

To enable fruit pickers to use both hands freely while carrying the baskets which they are filling, Mr. George S. Paine of Winslow, Me., has invented a basket holder, which easily may be secured in operative position by means of an adjustable strap passed around the waist. The holder consists of a trough-shaped member of sheet metal, which securely binds the basket in place. It is particularly designed to hold a pair of small baskets or boxes of the type in which berries are usually sold, but it will be evident that the holder could only be adapted to carrying baskets of other types. As shown in the accompanying illustration, says Scientific American, the sheet metal trough A is provided with an offset at one side, and an outwardly inclined wall, B. At the opposite side the trough is made fast to a block which is curved to fit the body. Secured to this block is a metal band provided with buttons at each end, to which a strap may be secured. This strap is provided with a number of buttonholes, so that it may be adjusted to the size of waist of the person on whom the holder is mounted. When placing the baskets in the trough, A, they will rest on the offset at the forward side thereof, and the extension, B, will press against them and bind them in place. The baskets will thus securely be retained against accidental displacement as the operator moves from place to place.

Obviously the use of this holder will effect a considerable economy;; for, with both hands free, the operator will be able to pick a much larger quantity of fruit in a given time.

STARTING A YOUNG ORCHARD.

Points to Be Observed in Securing a Good Growth.

There are many farmers who keep themselves busy saying that there is no pay in bothering with an orchard, and with them and the way they manage it, it does not pay.

After you have set the trees the work of a profitable orchard is not all done. That is only the beginning, and it is well to make a good beginning, but the young trees need some future care. They need cultivating especially while young. You had possibly better not set trees at all as to set them in sod and let the grass grow up around them, for then they will grow slow, be stunted, and likely die before coming into bearing. The grass takes up the moisture and the plant food, and robs the tree of vitality.

Young trees should be cultivated frequently for the first few years unless you know a better method. Some are using the mulch method and I think it is all right so far as the tree is concerned. I think it is fully as good as cultivating if it does not make too much of a harbor for mice. I have never tried this method.

My success in caring for the young orchard, writes an orchardist in Farmers' Mail and Breeze, has been to cultivate the young trees during the spring and summer and go over the ground about once a week, or after every rain. Keep the surface cultivated. Either do this by growing some crop which needs cultivating, or be sure and go through the trees anyway. Likely you will neglect it if you do not plant some crop, and the crop will not hurt the trees.

Set the young trees on good ground so they will grow well, and plant potatoes between the rows or any other crop, but be sure and keep the surface cultivated.

A Handy Garden Tool.

One of the best garden tools that I have ever used and one which may be made for a few cents by any blacksmith, or even made at home, if the farmer has a forge and anvil, consists of a cultivator made from an old pitchfork that has outlived its usefulness by having one or more of the tines broken. If as much as six inches of the tines is left these may be cut off evenly, bent at right angles like a hoe and sharpened. Such an implement as this far surpasses the hoe in the cultivation of small plants; in fact, there is never any need of the hoe unless it is cutting large weeds, for this will kill all the weeds and keep the ground pulverized better and with much less labor than it can be done with the hoe

HOW TO KNOW PURE PAINT.

A Way in Which It May Be Identified Before Using.

After a building has been painted long enough for a weather test, it is easy to tell if the paint used was made of pure White Lead or not. But such belated knowledge comes like locking the barn after the colt is stolen.

What one wants is a test that will tell the quality of the paint before it and the labor of putting it on are paid for.

Nature has provided a way in which genuine White Lead may be positively distinguished from adulterated or fake White Lead before you spend a cent on your painting.

Pure White Lead is made from metallic lead, and, under intense heat, such as is produced by a blow-pipe, pure White Lead will resolve itself back into metallic lead. If, however, it is not genuine White Lead, or if it contains the slightest trace of adulteration, the change will not take place. Therefore the "blow-pipe" test is an absolute and final one.

The National Lead Company are urging everyone interested in painting to make this test of paint before using it, and they guarantee that the pure White Lead sold under their "Dutch Boy Painter" trade-mark will always prove absolutely pure under the "blow-pipe" or any other test. To make it easy for you to perform the experiment they will send you free upon request a blow-pipe and everything necessary for you to make the test, together with a valuable booklet on paint. Address, National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York City.

"SINNER" CAN COME AGAIN.

Thief's Visit Resulted in Nice Margin of Profit to Farmer.

If there are any more chicken thieves like the one who entered his hennery three weeks ago, Thomas Ingraham of Park Mills, N. Y., will gladly furnish a chart of the grounds and guarantee to tie up the dog. A few mornings ago Mr. Ingraham entered the hennery, and to his amazement found a dozen fowls in place of the ones that he had missed after the visit of the thief. He also found hanging to a nail in the building a scrawl which said: "Mister Farmer, I was wicked when I stole them chicks of you, but wringed their necks when I hooked 'em from the roost, so could not put 'em back. Am awful sorry I done it, and will prove what I say by bringing you other chickens which I never stole. Them I took were common chicks, these are blooded. Never will I steal any more. Sinner." With such a conscience, the sinner's resolution is evidence of good business judgment, for Mr. Ingraham says the fowls he received are worth at least twice as much as the ones whose necks were "wringed" when they were "hooked."

Surely a No-Account Dog.

A man in Missouri recently sued a railway company for damages for the death of a hound killed on the track, says the Youth's Companion. The company defended itself upon the following points:

Said dog was chasing a rabbit up defendant's tracks in violation of the game laws.

Said rabbit lived on defendant's right of way, and was therefore the property of the defendant.

Plaintiff's dog was a trespasser, and was hunting defendant's property without permission.

Said deceased was not much of a dog, anyhow, or it could easily have kept out of the way of defendant's trains.

And having fully answered, defendant prays to be discharged.

MUSIC STUDENTS

Should Have Steady Nerves.

The nervous system of the musician is often very sensitive and any habit like coffee drinking may so upset the nerves as to make regular and necessary daily practise next to impossible.

"I practise from seven to eight hours a day and study Harmony two hours," writes a Mich. music student. "Last September I was so nervous I could only practise a few minutes at a time, and mother said I would have to drop my music for a year.

"This was terribly discouraging as I couldn't bear the thought of losing a whole year of study. Becoming convinced that my nervousness was caused largely by coffee, and seeing Postum so highly spoken of, I decided I would test it for a while.

"Mother followed the directions carefully and I thought I had never tasted such a delicious drink. We drank Postum every morning instead of coffee, and by November I felt more like myself than for years, and was ready to resume my music.

"I now practise as usual, do my studying and when my day's work is finished I am not any more nervous than when I began.

"I cannot too highly recommend Postum to musicians who practise half a day. My father is a physician and recommends Postum to his patients. Words cannot express my appreciation for this most valuable health beverage, and experience has proven its superiority over all others." "There's a Reason."

What's a Widower?

Is a widower a married or a single man?

This question continually crops up and it is continually being answered both ways. Certainly a widower is married—he is not a bachelor. That is one answer. Certainly, on the other hand, no matter what the man once was, he is single now. That is the other answer. Thus in all match games of single against married men—games of hockey, football, baseball, cricket—the poor widower is tossed from one side to the other like a shuttlecock. The solution depends solely upon his skill.

SERIAL STORY

LANGFORD of the THREE BARS

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

SYNOPSIS.

George Williston, a poor ranchman, high-minded and cultured, searches for cattle missing from his ranch—the "Lazy S." On a wooded spot in the river's bed that would have been an island had the Missouri been at high water, he discovers a band of horse thieves engaged in working over brands on cattle. He creeps near enough to note the changing of the "Three Bars" brand on one steer to the "J. R." brand. Paul Langford, the rich owner of the "Three Bars," is informed of the operations of the gang of cattle thieves—a band of outlaws headed by Jesse Black, who long have defied the law and authorities of Kemah county, South Dakota. Langford is struck with the beauty of Mary, commonly known as "Williston's little girl." Louise Dale, an expert court stenographer, who had followed her uncle, Judge Hammond Dale, from the east to the "Dakotahs," and who is living with him at Wind City, is requested by the county attorney, Richard Gordon, to come to Kemah and take testimony in the preliminary hearing of Jesse Black. Jim Munson, in waiting at the train for Louise, looks at a herd of cattle being shipped by Bill Brown and there detects old "Mag," a well known "ornery" steer belonging to his employer of the "Three Bars" ranch. Munson and Louise start for Kemah. Crowds assemble in Justice James R. McAllister's court for the preliminary hearing. Jesse Black springs the first of many great surprises, waiving examination. Through Jake Sanderson, a member of the outlaw gang, he had learned that the steer "Mag" had been recovered and thus saw the uselessness of fighting against being bound over. Richard Gordon, the county attorney, who is unpopular because of his many failures to secure convictions in court, wins the admiration of Louise, which is mutual. County Attorney Gordon accompanies Louise Dale on her return to Wind City. He tells her of the disappointments of his office, of witnesses that can be bribed and of the system of tampering with justice which prevents him from securing a conviction. He has the girl's sympathy.

Her hand touched the match box at last. A light flared out.

"Shut the door quick, dad," she said, lighting the lamp on the table. "The skeeters'll eat us alive."

Williston stepped to the door. Just a moment he stood there in the doorway, the light streaming out into the night, tall, thoughtful, no weakling in spite of many failures and many mistakes. A fair mark he made, outlined against the brightly lighted room. It was quiet. Not even a coyote shrilled. And while he stood there looking up at the calm stars, a sudden sharp report rang out and the sacred peace of God, written in the serenity of still summer nights, was desecrated. Hissing and ominous, the bullet sang past Williston's head, perilously near, and lodged in the opposite wall. At that moment the light was blown out. A great presence of mind had come to Mary in the time of imminent danger."

"Good, my dear!" cried Williston, in low tones. Quick as a flash the door was slammed shut and bolted just as a second shot fell foul of it.

"Oh, my father!" cried Mary, groping her way to his side.

"Hush, my dear! They missed me clean. Don't lose your nerve, Mary. They won't find it so easy after all."

There had been no third shot. A profound silence followed the second report. There was no sound of horse or man. Whence, then, the shots? One man, maybe, creeping up like some foul beast of prey to strike in the dark. Was he still lurking near, abiding another opportunity?

It took but a moment for Williston to have the rifles cocked and ready. Mary took her own from him with a hand that trembled ever so slightly.

"What will you do, father?" she asked, holding her rifle lovingly and thanking God in a swift, unformed thought for every rattlesnake or other noxious creature whose life she had put out while doing her man's work of riding the range—work which had given her not only a man's courage, but a man's skill as well.

"Take the back window, girl," he answered briefly. "I'll take the front. Stand to the side. Get used to the starlight and shoot every shadow you see, especially if it moves. Keep track of your shots, don't waste an effort and don't let anything creep up on you. They mustn't get near enough to fire the house."

His voice was sharp and incisive. The drifting habit had fallen from him and he was his own master again.

Several heavy minutes dragged away without movement, without sound from without. The ticking of the clock pressed on strained ears like ghastly bell-tolling. Their eyes became accustomed to the darkness, and by the dim starlight they were able to distinguish the outlines of the cattle sheds, still, empty, black. Nothing moved out there.

"I think they're frightened off," said Mary at last, breathing more freely. "They were probably just one, or they'd not have left. He knew he missed you, or he would not have fired again. Do you think it was Jesse?"

"Jesse would not have missed," he said, grimly.

At that moment a new sound broke the stillness, the whinny of a horse. Reinforcements had approached within the shadow of the cattle-sheds. Something moved out there at last.

"Daddy!" called Mary, in a choked whisper. "Come here—they are down at the sheds."

Williston stepped to the back window quickly.

"Change places," he said briefly.

"Daddy!"

"Yes?"

"Keep up your nerve," she breathed between great heart-pumps.

"Surely! Do you the same, little comrade, and shoot to kill."

There was a savage note in his last words. For himself, it did not matter so much, but Mary—he pinned no false faith in any thought of possible chivalrous intent on the part of the raiders to exempt his daughter from the grim fate that awaited him. He had to deal with a desperate man; there would be no clemency in this desperate man's retaliation.

To his quickened hearing came the sound of stealthy creeping. Something moved directly in front of him, but some distance away. "Shoot every shadow you see, especially if it moves," were the fighting orders, and his was the third shot of that night.

"Hell! I've got it in the leg!" cried a rough voice full of intense anger and pain, and there were sounds of a precipitate retreat.

Out under protection of the long row of low-built sheds other orders were being tersely given and silently received.

"Now, men, I'll shoot the first man of you who blubbers when he's hit. D'ye hear? There have been breaks enough in this affair already. I don't intend for that petticoat man and his pulin' petticoat kid in there to get any satisfaction out o' this at all. Hear me?"

There was no response. None was needed.

Some shots found harmless lodgment in the outer walls of the shanty. They were the result of an unavailing attempt to pick the window whence Williston's shot had come. Mary could not keep back a little womanish gasp of nervous dread.

Dark Sinister Figures Flitted from Tree to Tree.

"Grip your nerve, Mary," said her father. "That's nothing—shooting from down there. Just lie low and they can do nothing. Only watch, child, watch! They must not creep up on us. Oh, for a moon!"

She did grip her nerve, and her hand ceased its trembling. In the darkness her eyes were big and solemn. Sometime, to-morrow, the reaction would come, but to-night—

"Yes, father, keep up your own nerve," she said in a brave little voice that made the man catch his breath.

Again the heavy minutes dragged away. At each of the two windows crouched a tense figure, brain alert, eyes in iron control. It was a frightful strain, this waiting game. Could one be sure nothing had escaped one's vigilance? Starlight was deceptive, and one's eyes must needs shift to keep the mastery over their little horizon. It might well be that some one of those ghostly and hidden sentinels patrolling the lonely homestead had wormed himself past staring eyeballs, crawling, crawling, crawling; it might well be that at any moment a sudden light flaring up from some corner would tell the tale of the end.

Now and then could be heard the soft thud of a hoof as some one rode to execute an order. Occasionally, something moved out by the sheds. Such movement, if discernible from the house, was sure to be followed on the instant by a quick, sharp remonstrance from Williston's rifle. How long could it last? Would his nerve wear away with the night? Could he keep his will dominant? If so, he must drag his mind resolutely away from that nerve-racking, still, and unseen creeping, creeping, creeping, nearer and nearer. How the stillness weighed upon him, and still his mind dwelt upon that sinuous, flat-bellied creeping, crawling, worming! God, it was awful! He fought it desperately. He knew he was lost if he could not stop thinking about it. The sweat came out in big beads on his forehead, on his body; he prickled with the heat of the effort. Then it left him—the awful horror—left him curiously cold, but steady of nerve and with a will of iron and eyes, cat's eyes, for their seeing in the dark. Now that he was calm once more, he let himself weigh the chances of succor. They were pitifully remote. The Lazy S was situated in a lonely stretch of prairie land far from any direct trail. True, it lay between Kemah, the county seat, and the Three Bars ranch, but it was a good half mile from the straight routs. Even so, it was a late hour for any one to be passing by. It was not a traveled trail except for the boys of the Three Bars, and they were known to be great home-stayers and little given to spreeing. As for the rustlers, if rustlers they were, they had no fear of interruption by the officers of the law, who held their places by virtue of the insolent and arbitrary will of Jesse Black and his brotherhood, and were now carousing in Kemah by virtue of the hush-money put up by this same secret tribunal.

"Watch, child, watch!" he said again, without in the least shifting his tense position.

"Surely!" responded Mary, quite steadily.

Now was her time come. Dark, sinister figures flitted from tree to tree. At first she could not be sure, it was so heartlessly dark, but there was movement—it was different from that terrible blank quiet which she had hitherto been gazing upon till her eyes burned and pricked as with needle points, and visionary things swam before them. She winked rapidly to dispel the unreal and floating things, opened wide her long-lashed lids, fixed them, and—fired. Then Williston knew that his "little girl," his one ewe lamb, all that was left to him of a full and gracious past, must go through what he had gone through, all that nameless horror and expectant dread, and his heart cried out at the unholy injustice of it all. He dared not go to her, dared not desert his post for an instant. If one got within the shadow of the walls all was lost.

Mary's challenge was met with a rather hot return fire. It was probably given to inspire the besieged with a due respect for the attackers' numbers. Bullets pattered around the outside walls like hailstones, one even whizzed through the window perilously near the girl's intent young face.

Silence came back to the night. There was no more movement. Yet down there at the spring something, maybe one of those dark, gaunt cottonwoods, held death—death for her and death for her father. A stream of icy coldness struck across her heart. She found herself calculating in deliberation which tree it was that held this thing—death. The biggest one, shadowing the spring, helping to keep the pool sweet and cool where Paul Langford had galloped his horse that day when—ah! if Paul Langford would only come now!

A wild, girlish hope flashed up in her heart. Langford would come—had he not sworn it to her father? Had he not given his hand as a pledge? It means something to shake hands in the cattle country. He was big and brave and true. When he came these awful, creeping terrors would disperse—grim shadows that must steal away when morning comes. When he came she could put her rifle in his big, confident hands, lie down on the floor and—cry. She wanted to cry—oh, how she did want to cry. Cold reason came back to her aid and dissipated the weak and womanish longing to give way to tears. There was a pathetic droop to her mouth, a long, quivering, sobbing sigh, and she buried her woman's weakness right deeply and stamped upon it. How utterly wild and foolish her brief hope had been! Langford and all his men were sound in sleep long ago. How could he know? were the ruffians out there men to tell? Ah, no! There was no one to know. It would all happen in the dark—in awful loneliness, and there would be no one to know until it was all over—to-morrow, maybe, or next week, who could tell? They were off the main trail, few people ever sought them out. There would be no one to know.

Cause of Seaman's Bad Language.

At Southampton (Eng.) a seaman named Johnson had to appear before the borough magistrate on a charge of making use of bad language in St. Mary's street. In explanation he said he was married in St. Mary's church, Southampton, many years ago. He left Southampton after the ceremony and was away several years. Coming back the other day he went to look at the church, and finding there was still no steeple to it he did in his righteous anger use some very strong words. In fining the defendant ten shillings and costs the chairman of the bench said many people had said strong things about such a beautiful church as St. Mary's having no steeple, but they did not use such bad expressions as the defendant had.

A Breeches Stratagem.

After the battle of Ramillies had been won by the great duke of Marlborough, Lord John Hay, who commanded a regiment of Scotch dragoons, when the regiment of foot, called the King's, consisting of 1,200 men, submitted to him and surrendered their arms and colors, ordered, to prevent their running away, and the necessity of setting a strong guard over them, that every man should cut a piece out of the waistband of his breeches, which obliged them to hold them up with one hand, and in that posture they marched with a guard of only 25 dragoons and a sergeant. Charles XII. did something like this by the Muscovites after the battle of Narva.

CLIMATE IS IDEAL

GREAT WEALTH ACQUIRED IN GROWING GRAIN.

Writing from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, W. H. Ellwanger, who was formerly a resident of Green Mountain, Iowa, says: "The climate in summer is ideal for growing grain. Long, clear days of sunshine, no bad storms. We never need to guard against cyclones; I never saw a better climate in my life. We made more money during the season of 1906 than any previous five years in central Iowa—one of the best districts in the state." But Mr. Ellwanger was a resident of the town, and it might be more interesting to read what a farmer has to say about Western Canada. From hundreds of letters all filled with words of praise, recounting success in Western Canada there has been one selected. It is as follows:

Paynton, Sask., Canada,
Dec. 10th, 1907.

To Whom This May Concern:

I moved to this address February 3, 1907, from Montgomery, Iowa, and took a homestead 35 miles north of Paynton. It was cold when I moved here but it did not stay cold long; it broke up the 8th of February, and was not so cold after that but the spring was late on account of the heavy snow fall, but in spite of the late spring I saw better grain than I ever saw in the states, raised this year. I helped a man finish sowing oats the 4th of July and they made fair oats. In a good year oats will go 100 bushels to the acre and wheat 25 to 50; all root crops do well here. I saw turnips weigh 7 and 8 pounds. I raised potatoes this year that measured 11½ inches one way and 18½ the other in circumference. This is a fine stock country; hay in abundance, good water, plenty of fuel, free and plenty of building material—the government gives us timber to saw into lumber and we can get it sawed for about $6.00 per thousand. All small fruit grows wild here, then there are ducks, geese, grouse, pheasants, deer, moose, elk and fish in abundance. I was over to Turtle Lake yesterday where there is lots of fishing being done this winter. I saw about a carload of white fish in one pile. I gave 25 cents for 86 pounds of fish. What do you think of that, Brother Yankee? I think this is a fine place both to make money and to live. There was an old man up here visiting his brother-in-law. Now this man owns land close to Des Moines, Iowa, and is in good circumstances, but he took a homestead and says he will be contented if he can only put in the rest of his days in Canada. He would get up in the morn and look out of the door and say: "Well, who wouldn't live in Canada?" Now I have been in 13 different states in the United States, and I never saw the chance that there is here for a man that has a little muscle and a little brains. Three cheers for Canada! (Signed.)

W. A. SPICE."

LUMBAGO

This is really Rheumatism of the Muscles of the Loins and is characterized by a severe, at times, agonizing pain in the small of the back, allowing the sufferer scarcely a moment's rest, while the ailment is at its worst. It can come from cold, exposure to draft, from getting wet feet or wearing wet or damp clothing. It causes acute suffering, and if allowed to become chronic it may permanently disable the sufferer. The way to secure quickest relief is to redden the skin over the painful part by rubbing with a flesh brush or piece of flannel rag, and then apply ST. JACOBS OIL by gentle friction with the hand.

To refuse to yield to others when reason or a special cause require it is a mark of pride and stiffness.—Thomas a Kempis.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

Dr. Hartman has claimed for many years that Peruna is an EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY. Some of the doctor's critics have disputed the doctor's claim as to the efficacy of Peruna.

Since the ingredients of Peruna are no longer a secret, what do the medical authorities say concerning the remedies of which Peruna is composed?

Take, for instance, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL. The United States Dispensatory says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is classed in the United States Dispensatory as a tonic.

CEDRON SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensatory says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

OIL OF COPAIBA, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensatory as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes. Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

Our Peruna Tablet Is Peruna With Fluid Removed.

These opinions as to the ingredients of Peruna are held by all writers on the subject, including Bartholow and Scudder.

OF HYDRASTIS, BARTHOLOW SAYS it is applicable to stomatitis (catarrh of the mucous surfaces of the mouth), follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classes hydrastis as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the ducdenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW REGARDS COPAIBA as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes).

BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CUBEB, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), increasing the tonicity of the mucous membranes of the throat. It also relieves hoarseness. Useful in atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), and in chronic catarrh of the colon and rectum, catarrh of the bladder, prostatorrhea, and chronic bronchial affections.

MILLSPAUGH, MEDICINAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, collinsonia canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. SCUDDER regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy.

This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate this claim by ample quotations from the HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

From Terrible Eczema—Baby's Head a Mass of Itching Rash and Sores —Disease Cured by Cuticura.

"Our little girl was two months old when she got a rash on her face and within five days her face and head were all one sore. We used different remedies but it got worse instead of better and we thought she would turn blind and that her ears would fall off. She suffered terribly, and would scratch until the blood came. This went on until she was five months old, then I had her under our family doctor's care, but she continued to grow worse. He said it was eczema. When she was seven months old I started to use the Cuticura Remedies and in two months our baby was a different girl. You could not see a sign of a sore and she was as fair as a newborn baby. She has not had a sign of the eczema since. Mrs. H. F. Budke, LeSueur, Minn., Apr. 15 and May 2, '07."

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Behind the Screen.

At a particularly dainty little restaurant a lady with a sense of humor chooses the seat nearest the serving room, from which vantage point she notes and records, somewhat after the manner of Miss Beatrice Herford, the squabbles and comments of the dainty waitresses. Here are some of her curious transcripts from reality:

"I told you six soups, not desserts—the beginning of the meal, not the finish! Can't you hear straight?"

"Here, Birdie, take back this coffee! It's so cold it gave the woman malaria!"

"Great Scott! This lettuce isn't fit for a horse! I'd sooner eat grass!"

"Oh, gee! Hurry up! It's for an old maid, and her temper's worse'n mine!"

"Say, you're the limit! I asked for fat meat, and you've given me a joint—nothin' but bone! Wake up!"

Behind a screen, my correspondent tells me, they often imitate certain of the guests—mimicking their walk, even their table manners. And as for the remarks she overhears, she marvels less at their content than at the way they are uttered. "Such voices!" And so she expresses astonishment that at table, while waiting on the people, "these young women are ever quiet and demure and patient—soft tones and a cheery but dignified manner."—Boston Transcript.

Precious Stones and "Paste."

Glass, or "paste," as it is called, is made which cannot when new be distinguished from diamonds by any one but an expert armed with the necessary tests.

And the same is true as to paste imitations of all precious stones excepting the emerald (whose beautiful green tint cannot be exactly obtained), the cat's eye, which has a peculiar fibrous structure, and the opal. The real value and quality of precious stones as compared with glass depend on their durability, their hardness, their resistance to scratching and "dulling" of face and edge.

Even our Anglo-Saxon ancestors made gems of glass and paste. It is only in modern times that the art of making artificial "precious stones" has reached a degree of perfection which, so far as decorative purposes are concerned, leaves the natural stones no claim to superiority.—London Telegraph.

Official Precedence.

The Chicago Inter Ocean tells of the daughter of a well known representative who on her tenth birthday had a party, and one of the guests was the daughter of a senator. The birthday cake shone gloriously with ten candles.

A few weeks later the senator's daughter reached her eighth milestone, and a party was in order. Just before the guests arrived the small celebrant betook herself to the dining room to take a look at the festal board. High on its pedestal of crystal stood the birthday cake, and circling its snowy circumference were eight tiny candles, one for each year.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven—eight!" ejaculated the small hostess. "Mamma, mamma, please come here quick. They've only put eight candles on my birthday cake, and my father's a senator! Now, Mary had ten candles on her birthday cake, and she's only the daughter of a congressman."

Quick Wit.

Napoleon was pacing up and down one day before his quarters, planning probably some new scheme of conquest. He dropped his glove, and a common soldier happening along picked it up and returned it to him.

"Thank you, captain," said the emperor absentmindedly, not thinking that the man was only a private.

"Of which company, sire?" put in the soldier promptly, taking Napoleon at his word.

"Come to me tonight and you shall receive your commission," said the great commander.

He knew that that common soldier had the presence of mind necessary to make a good officer.

In the "Coaching" Days.

An amusing story is told of the coach which used to run between Edinburgh and Berwick. A passenger complained bitterly that the cushion on which he sat was wet. It appears that there was a hole in the roof, and through it the rain was pouring copiously. The passenger called the guard and in great wrath reproached him. All the satisfaction he got, however, was the quiet and typical Scotch reply, "Ay, mony a ane has compleened aboot that hole."—St. James' Gazette.

Books In India.

In India the printed book is regarded as vulgar if not irreverent, and no devout Hindoo would allow his sacred writings to be contaminated by contact with leather prepared from the hide of some animal's dead body. A leather bound copy of the Bible is for him a remarkable illustration of Christian irreverence.—Churchman.

Pretty Black.

"What do you know of the character of this man?" was asked of a witness at a police court the other day.

"What do I know of his character? I know it to be unbleachable, your honor," he replied, with much emphasis.

Very Like a Bull.

Congressman Seedgraft was very green when he first came to congress. He began his maiden speech thus: "Mr. Speaker, I cannot sit still here and keep silence without rising and saying a few words."

When a distant relation becomes rich he is apt to become still more distant.

Mammoth Cave.

For many years after the discovery of Mammoth cave the entire work of exploration was practically in the hands of negro slaves, the property of the man who owned the cave. Sometimes they would come to an obstacle that barred the passage, such as a great limestone rock or a yawning crevasse across the way. Such obstacles would often stop exploration in that direction for years, though beyond the obstruction there were likely to be scores of beautiful chambers and many miles of passageways. Thus it happened that for years nothing was known of that large part of the cave lying beyond the abyss named the Bottomless pit. This obstruction was known for over twenty years before it was crossed. Then one day in 1837 the negro cave explorer Stephen and some of his fellows dragged to the place the trunk of a small tree, and on this rather dangerous bridge Stephen crawled across the abyss. Then began the explorations that revealed one of the most wonderful and extensive parts of Mammoth cave. The abyss was found later to be 180 feet deep.

Some Witty Titles.

The pupils of one of the high schools of Philadelphia evinced great interest in a competition for a prize to be awarded the pupil who should submit the wittiest list of titles for twelve sham books on a dummy shelf. The following are some of the titles received in the competition:

"A New England Puss," by M. E. W.
"Thoughts On My Bed," Stead.
"On Different Tacks," by Van Hammer.
"Lizzie Wouldn't," by John Wood.
"The Fatal Blow," by John Knox.
Porter's "Tales of Lost Baggage."
"Lost In the Wash," by the author of "Bachelor's Buttons."
"Grinding the Poor," by Mill.
"Owe No Man," by O. W. Holmes.
"After the Ball," by the author of "Our National Game."
Morse on "Our Old Houses."
"Woodchucks and Rabbits," by Burroughs.
"E. E.," by the author of "My Double."

An Unconscious Meal.

Once John Muir, author and ranchman, was dining with a friend. They sat down, and Muir began to tell a story. The waiter came around several times, but the story was so good nothing was ordered. Muir talked and talked, and in between he would reach over and break off a piece of bread from a French loaf on the table. This he did a good many times. The story reminded him of another, and so he talked and ate bread until finally, being very hungry, his companion broke in with:

"Well, what shall I order for you, Mr. Muir?"

"Order?" he repeated in his abstraction.

"Yes, order—to eat."

He looked over at the last little remaining piece of bread on the plate and said, as if waking from a dream:

"Eat? Why, I've had all I want. That bread was bully."—Bookman.

Large Thumbs.

"People of great strength of character, who are guided by the head rather than the heart, have large thumbs," says Irving R. Bacon. "Whenever you see a person with a strikingly large, well developed thumb, you may be almost certain you have before you one who is a natural born ruler, eminently practical and fond of whatever is useful. Wherefore also he is fond of history. A large thumbed woman may fall in love as deeply as her small thumbed sister, but will not marry unless she can see a sufficient bread and butter supply ahead. But she is more apt to be a real helpmate when adversity comes."—New York Journal.

The Only "Merrymaking."

The school record kept by an old time teacher of "No. 6" in a New England village contains at least one item which moved a chance reader to smiles. It is this:

"Special honor badges were given to Flora and Minetta Lovett for the best attendance. During the entire school year they were not once absent to attend any picnic, reunion, excursion or merrymaking, the only exception being the afternoon of May 10, when their twin brothers were ill from the effect of something they had eaten and not expected to live, although they soon recovered."

No Visible Signals.

"Yessum," said Sandy Pikes as he devoured the wedge of pumpkin pie, "I sternly object to the nefarious practice of clipping off de tails of dogs."

"Ah, I am glad you are so tender hearted, my poor man," sympathized the good housewife.

"Well, it ain't exactly dat, mum, but when a dog hasn't any tail I can't tell by de wags if he is in a good humor or not, and it makes me skeery about approaching de house."—Chicago News.

Strict Truth.

May—She says she can trace her ancestry on her mother's side back to the conquest of England. Fay—That's correct. Her maternal grandmother was married in leap year to a man named England.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Ruling Passion.

"Why didn't your daughter go to Europe to study music, Mrs. Dibbs?"

"We've got her ready to go three times, and each time she decided she'd rather stay at home and show her clothes."

Beware of inquisitive people. An excessive curiosity to know all is generally accompanied by as great a desire to tell it again.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long ago as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell of Howell's American School, Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3d our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave, and it afforded prompt relief, and now, three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only, saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale by L Taggart.

Not Far to Go.

The reporter hurried up to the scene of the accident. A workman engaged on some scaffolding had missed his footing and had fallen many feet into the street below. Then the reporter went off to interview the unfortunate man, who luckily had escaped with a very severe shaking and a few nasty bruises, and asked sympathetically:

"Did you have vertigo, my man?"

"Oh, no, sir; only about thirty-five feet. Quite far enough for me, though."—Pearson's.

An Effective Scarecrow.

A scarecrow used by a farmer in the north of England not only scared every crow that saw it, but one crow was so frightened that he brought back the corn he had carried to his nest three days before.—London Tit-Bits.

Grateful.

"And now," said the talkative man at the concert, "suppose at a time like this you were all alone in the world. What would you do with"— Nervous Man—Thank the Lord.

They Are Rare.

Peggy—Was that p'liceman ever a little baby, mother? Mother—Why, yes, dear. Peggy (thoughtfully)—I don't believe I've ever seen a baby p'liceman!—Punch.

Pipes and the Lips.

The constant habit of smoking pipes has a perceptible effect upon the face. The pressure of the lips to hold the pipe in position increases the curvature of the lips round the stem, and the muscles become more rigid here than in other parts. Thus the lips at a certain point become stronger, and the pipe is unconsciously held in the same habitual position. After long continuation of the habit small circular wrinkles form parallel with the curvature of the lips around the stem. These are crossed by finer lines caused by the pressure of the lips to retain the stem in position. In the case of old men who have smoked a pipe for years the effect upon the lips is very marked, not only altering the form of the lips, but of the one entire side of the face, causing the wrinkles that are the result of age to deepen and instead of following the natural course of facial wrinkles to change their course so as to radiate from the part of the mouth where the pipe is habitually carried. Furthermore, one or both lips often protrude, just like the lips of people who used to suck their thumbs when children.—Medical Record.

Painful Etiquette.

The royal court of France used to be a great place for etiquette. Louis XIV. once caught a severe cold owing to the fact that on his arising from his bed one cold morning the lord of the chamber, whose duty it was to hand him his shirt, happened to be absent. Not one of the numerous courtiers present had the courage to trangress etiquette by handing the garment to the shivering monarch.—London Scrap Book.

Indifferent.

"I can't give you an opinion on that question," the statesman replied, "because it's a question I pay no attention to. I am indifferent to it—as indifferent as the backswoodsman's wife. That lady, you know, looked on while her husband had a fierce hand to hand tussle with a bear, and afterward she said it was 'the only fight she ever saw where she didn't care who won.'"

Going On.

A terrible noise of thumping and stamping came from Bob's room early one morning.

"Bobby, Bobby," called his mother from downstairs, "what is going on up there?"

"My shoes," replied Bob.

One Drawback.

Olive—What an improvement it will be if the time ever comes when everybody can get a seat in the street cars. Violet—Oh, I don't know. A girl would never be sure then that she was pretty.—Puck.

Some children act as if it were a constant surprise to them that their parents had the excellent taste to pick them out.—Nantucket Inquirer and Mirror.

Singing and Gargling.

Singers do not give away their secrets of the voice. I know, however, that some of the tenors and prima donnas use an astringent gargle whenever their vocal cords become so relaxed that very high notes are difficult to emit. One famous little tenor used cold tea that had drawn a long time. Such a gargle, though, does not improve the quality of the voice, even if it does raise the pitch temporarily.

The popular gargle among opera artists is the solvent. It loosens crusts which form in the throat and nasal cavities and removes mucous which cannot be got rid of by coughing and hawking. A common wash is twelve grains of chlorate of potash to a wineglassful of warm water. Many singers and orators in order to render their voices clear and mellow use a gargle containing one teaspoonful of common salt and one of baking soda in a tumblerful of water. These gargles are improved by further adding some aromatic substances to stimulate the mucous membrane with which they come in contact.—New York Press.

Needles and Pins.

The Lancet tells of a peculiar case in a London hospital. The patient, a healthy Scotch girl, aged twenty years, was in the habit of putting pins in her mouth and sometimes had been known to fall asleep without removing them. She was admitted to the hospital, having swallowed five pins accidentally while fixing clothes, and by the help of emetics she was relieved of them. Returning home, she began regularly to vomit pins and got rid of twenty-three in the course of a month. She then began to produce needles, and in a fortnight thirteen came out from the following situations: The left nostril, the origin of the sternomastoid behind the left ear and a spot on the front of the right forearm. At the same time she continued vomiting pins until seventy-five had appeared. The needles were blackened and slightly eroded, and two of them were threaded with about three inches of thread.

He Emptied His Pockets.

The Comte de Corbieres, minister of the interior to Louis XVIII., while working in the king's cabinet one day became absorbed in his work and so far forgot himself as to place his snuffbox on the king's desk after taking snuff. The king observed this unheard of familiarity from the corner of his eye, but said nothing. Presently the minister whipped out his pocket handkerchief and placed it beside the snuffbox.

"M. de Corbieres," remarked the king at last, "you appear to be emptying your pockets."

"Perhaps so, sire," was the calm response, "but that is much better than filling them."

The king smiled at the clever hit at the corruption of some of the minister's predecessors. Corbieres was noted for his scrupulous integrity.

Neat Little Game.

After tea she brought over his pipe and his slippers.

"John," she whispered tenderly, "do you know my conscience has been hurting me and I have formed a little conscience fund."

"Conscience fund?" asked the big husband in surprise.

"Yes, dear. You see, I have been borrowing a few dollars out of your vest pockets every night for a week, and here is the entire sum."

"Well! Well! You are an honest little woman."

"And, John?"

"Well, my dear?"

"Now—now that I have been so honest, would—would you mind giving me the 'conscience fund' to buy a pretty hat I saw in a window today?"—Boston Post.

Could See Too Much.

A fine, robust soldier, after serving his country faithfully for some time, became greatly reduced in weight, owing to exposure and scanty rations, until he was so weak he could hardly stand. Consequently he got leave of absence to go home and recuperate. He arrived at his home station looking very badly. Just as he stepped off the boat one of his old friends rushed up to him and said, "Well, well, Pat, I see you're back from the front."

Pat looked worried and replied, "Begorra, I knew I was getting thin, but I nivver thought you could see that much!"—London Tit-Bits.

Noah and Genoa.

In his "Rambling Recollections" Sir Henry Drummond Wolff tells the following story of Bulwer Lytton:

"A lady one day remarked to the famous novelist and politician how odd it was that a dove (derived from the word colombe) should have been sent to find the Old World and that Columbus (Colombe) should have found the new. Sir Edward replied:

"'Yes, and the one came from Noah, the other from Genoa.'"

True Enough.

Cassidy—Shure, how kin ye say ye save money? Iv'ry cint ye iver make ye spend. Ye lay none of it by. Casey—That's how I save. If I laid anny of it by some wan would come along an' borrow it, an' that'd be th' ind of it.—Philadelphia Press.

Effective.

"Have you got something that will remove superfluous hair?"

"You bet I have!"

"What do you call it?"

"My mother-in-law."—Houston Post.

The Other Side.

Mrs. Neighbor—It's too bad of you, Mildred, to worry your mamma so! Little Mildred—Well, you don't know mamma. She worries me more than I worry her!

Pennyroyal and Fleas.

When it comes to talking about fleas the writer knows just where he is at. When he was a boy the country swarmed with them, and perhaps one of the things he will remember longest will be the sleepless nights and the torments that the fleas gave him when sitting in Quaker meetings, where he did not dare to scratch. For many years the people seemed to put up with them as an evil from which there was no escape, yet there was an efficient remedy growing on every farm in the shape of a modest little plant called pennyroyal, which is familiar to every country bred boy. The odor of this plant seems very offensive to many kinds of insects. A freshly bruised bunch of the plant put in a small bag and rubbed on the bed linen and then left in the bed will evict the last flea in a very few minutes. A few drops of the essential oil of the plant, which can be got at any drug store, rubbed on one's underclothing will drive them from the person immediately and if sprinkled about a room infested with fleas will clear them out.—Forest and Stream.

Before the Mirror.

He is one of those persons with a mad passion for figuring out "How much," "How long," etc., and was waiting for his wife, who was adjusting her hat before the mirror. They were going to the theater and had ten minutes to catch their train. Presently a sparkle came into his eye, and he fished a pencil and paper from his pocket. That kind of man always has a pencil and paper even in his evening clothes.

"Do you know," he said presently, looking up at his wife, who had finished adjusting her hat, "that I figure, basing my figures on observation, that a girl from six to ten spends an average of seven minutes a day before her mirror, from ten to fifteen a quarter of an hour, from fifteen to twenty twenty-two minutes. A woman of seventy will have spent 5,862 hours, or eight solid months, counting day and night. Now, a woman of your age has spent"—

"Never mind what I've spent," she said coldly, removing her hat. "You have spent fifteen minutes figuring it out, and we have missed that train."—St. Louis Republic.

A Little Retouching.

The wonders of photography are ever on the increase. Nevertheless there are still some limitations to the power and skill of even the most expert photographer. Mr. Hall is an amateur of no mean attainments, and when his old Aunt Hannah from Bushby came down to the city he secured a picture of her in her most characteristic pose—arms akimbo and mouth slightly open. When Aunt Hannah saw the first print she looked at it, held it off, drew it close again and then sat down to write her nephew:

Dear James—Yours with photograph taken during my late visit just received. In reply I would say I'm well enough pleased with it for myself and your folks. But in the one you send out to California to Emma I'd rather you'd straighten it at my elbows and let my arms hang. Affectionately, AUNT HANNAH.

P. S.—Perhaps you'd better close my mouth a mite more, as Emma's husband is a stranger to me.

—Youth's Companion.

And "Everybody Laughed."

The following story was told by Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler in the London P. T. O.: "At a dinner party one evening after my marriage the conversation, which was general, took a literary turn, and a gentleman sitting next to me, who did not know the identity of Mrs. Felkin with Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler, began to descant on the way young authors spoil themselves with tricks. To emphasize his point he said, 'What can be more horrible than Miss Fowler's trick of saying "Everybody laughed?"' There was a dead pause. He evidently expected me to make a remark, for when I did not speak he turned and said: 'Oh, don't you know Miss Fowler's books? Haven't you read any of them?' 'I wrote them,' I replied, and then, indeed, 'everybody laughed.'"

A Mother's Sacrifice.

Legends in India run that if a woman stricken with leprosy suffers herself to be buried alive the disease will not descend to her children. There was in the northwest provinces of India the wife of a gardener on whom the loathsome malady had fallen. Children were born to her. The disease grew worse. She importuned her husband to bury her alive. He at last, yielding to her prayers, summoned his son. The two dug the grave, and four neighbors assisted at the sepulture. So the woman died. These facts were investigated in a magistrate's court and were proved.

In Lengthy Terms.

In the suburbs of one of our great cities recently a new resident stopped in front of his neighbor's gate and inquired of the boy swinging thereon:

"Is your pa home, sonny?"

"No, sir," replied the lad. "He went up the road apiece."

"Gone afoot?"

"No; about a mile."—Judge's Library.

To Keep From Breaking.

"My hero has a strong face," remarked the author.

"He needs it," replied the critic. "I notice his face falls every time he meets the heroine!"

Not Now.

New Boarder—One thing I'll say for these eggs—there's nothing bold or impudent about them. Landlady—Bold or impudent! I don't understand. New Boarder—Why, not a bit too fresh, you know.

"GREAT MINDS TO MADNESS CLOSELY ARE ALLIED"

Prof. Grasset Proves Truth of Pope's Famous Lines

The erotomaniac who loves two young women, often sisters, with equal love at the same time. He can't bear to marry either, knowing that the other adored one may become the wife of some other man.

The monomaniac is insane on one subject only, generally the invention of a perpetual motion machine, or some other contrivance which defies every known law of mechanics. On every other subject he is perfectly rational.

The dipsomaniac suffers from a disease which makes him drink whenever an attack comes on. He should not be confounded with the habitual drunkard.

The megalomaniac is the founder of queer religions and sects. He invents new doctrines and beliefs and strives to win converts to his way of thinking, generally with a small degree of success.

The sitomaniac has ungovernable impulses to eat. Sitomania is a disease, a mild form of insanity, and the sufferer feels impelled to eat at all times and hours, no matter whether he is hungry or not.

The kleptomaniac, who is driven in spite of herself to take what does not belong to her. Kleptomaniacs show great skill and employ many clever ruses in their thefts.

The pyromaniac has strong impulses to set buildings on fire. Neither viciousness nor a desire for revenge prompts his actions, but just a longing to start big conflagrations.

A CAREFUL study of Prof. Grasset's remarkable book on the "demi-fous" leads to two very decided and consoling conclusions; first, that all great men are more or less insane; and, second, that it is not such a very dreadful thing to belong to the "demi-fous," after all.

There is not, as Prof. Grasset points out, any way in which to draw a distinguishing line between sanity and insanity. The shades, or brands, of one overlap and are interwoven with the other to such a degree that it is impossible to show where the one ends and the other begins. In other words, you, for instance, can be both sane and insane at the same time—perfectly sane on certain subjects, but insane, or partly so, on at least one other. There are so many brands of insanity that, fortunately, not all of us are insane on the same subject.

"Between calm, cold reason and a transport of passion," says Prof. Grasset, "between originality and eccentricity, between nervousness and agitation, between a person who is slightly touched and one who is demented, there are all degrees of transition, and it is impossible to say where insanity begins."

Admitting for the moment, then, that everybody is more or less insane, it is not a question of just how insane a person is, but of the particular brand of insanity he has inherited or acquired, says a writer in the New York Sunday World.

The brands may be counted by the score. Some of them are of real value, especially to a man of genius. Others are useless, harmless or detrimental, as the case may be.

The erotomaniac, for instance, falls in love. But that is not all. He may love two sisters with equal love at the same time and, no matter how hard he may try, he cannot make up his mind which to marry. It is impossible for him to bear the thought that either of the young women he loves should become the wife of another. He generally solves the problem by giving them both up and marrying a third.

The Dipsomaniac Class.

The dipsomaniac, who must not be classed with the habitual drunkard, suffers from an affliction which impels him to drink whenever an attack comes on.

Then there are the kleptomaniacs. Prof. Grasset describes them as "sick people who are driven in spite of themselves to take what does not belong to them, just as we have seen that the dipsomaniacs are driven by an irresistible power to drink."

Among other brands of semi-insanity may be mentioned sitomania, pyromania, monomania and megalomania, which are illustrated and briefly described. Then there are other brands which are characterized by illusions, hallucinations, jealousy, conceit, boastfulness, rashness, inertness, impulsiveness, timidity and many forms of eccentricity.

Prof. Grasset declares that from childhood persons of unbalanced mind are apt to "draw attention to themselves by their precocity, their quickness in taking hold of everything and understanding it, and at the same time by their whims, their headstrong ways, their cruel instincts, their violent and convulsive attacks of anger. When they become men they are queer, complex, heterogeneous individuals, made up of contradictory qualities and faults. They are often as highly gifted in one line as they are lacking in another. From the intellectual point of view they sometimes possess the faculties of imagination, invention and expression in a very high degree; that is to say, they are gifted in speech, in the arts and in poetry."

Those Who Are "A Little Off."

The originals and eccentrics show lack of equilibration to a still greater degree. "These people," says Prof. Grasset, "are what the public would describe as 'a little off' on some one subject; they either have some peculiar habit or wear some odd style of clothes or have a queer manner of wearing their hair or of walking or writing or speaking. It may be either a strange gesture, a form of speech, a tie or a grievance. The eccentricity is often shown by an imperious or obsessional tendency, as, for example, to surround oneself with birds or flowers or cats; to collect uninteresting objects, particularly articles of wearing apparel, such as cravats, hats, footwear or wrappers of every style and color, or to be absorbed in researches and calculations and ridiculous inventions."

But, after all, semi-insanity in some forms has its advantages. Many world-famous men—poets, mathematicians, philosophers, historians, writers, statesmen and scientists—would probably never have been heard of but for that one little streak of insanity which lent luster and impetus to their minds and prompted them to accomplish something of tremendous value to mankind.

For instance, "Tolstoi belongs to the category of the semi-insane who are termed 'originals.' At eight years of age he was seized with an irresistible desire to fly. This idea haunted him to such a degree that he decided to put it into practice. He shut himself up in his study room, climbed up to the window and made the movements for flying in the air. He fell from a height of more than 16 feet and was sick for some time following."

Tolstoi's Peculiar Mania.

Later Tolstoi's particular brand of insanity prompted him to fall in love, not once, but threefold; for, having met the three daughters of Dr. Berce, he "began by being very much taken by the oldest, then he thought he was in love with the second, and finally fell in love with the third." The triple romance ended abruptly, for Tolstoi suddenly decided that instead of getting married he would mow hay with the moujiks in a peasant's blouse.

Ossip Lourie, who made a psychological study of many of the great Russian novelists of the nineteenth century, summed up Tolstoi's case in the following way:

"Tolstoi is one of those rare men to whom the English aphorism, 'They are certainly cracked, but the crack lets in light,' might apply. In a word, Tolstoi was a semi-insane genius."

Even Socrates must have had a streak of insanity in him, for he "went into ecstacies which were almost cataleptic fits. At table, or in the streets of Athens, or in the camps, he would suddenly stop short, sometimes without motive. At other times, on the occasion of a sneeze either by himself or one of his neighbors, he would act, or would not act, according to whether the sneeze had taken place on his right hand or on his left."

Insanity of Some Great Men.

Prof. Grasset cites the cases of many other great men of past and present times whose brands of insanity were manifested in various ways. Pascal, for instance, "could not stand seeing water without falling into a perfect fit of passion." Then Auguste Comte who has exerted a vast and lasting influence on the philosophical position of the savants of the nineteenth century, "was undoubtedly semi-insane when he was not wholly insane. He wrote incoherent letters. While he was taking a walk one day he wanted to drag his wife with him into the Lake d'Enghein. During his meals he would try to drive his knife into the table, like Walter Scott's Highlander, and he would order the succulent back of a pig and recite bits of Homer."

Of Gorki, Prof. Grasset writes that he "made an attempt to commit suicide at the age of 18 and belongs to the category of the semi-insane who have been termed vagabonds or wanderers."

Guy de Maupassant died insane. He had often confessed to Paul Bourget that he frequently saw his double. In going into his own room he would see himself seated upon his own sofa. The roots of his disease "seemed to be confused with the very qualities of his talent." Villemain had ideas of persecution. Jean Jacques Rousseau was successively clockmaker, mountebank, music master, painter and servant, and then followed the paths of medicine, music, theology and botany. He used to meditate bareheaded in the sun at midday. He fell in love at 11. He would suddenly depart from an inn, leaving his trunk behind him. Gerard de Nerval, the political writer and poet, was subject to hallucinations. He would be found on the street corner, his hat in his hand, lost in a sort of ecstacy. In the Tuileries he saw the goldfish in the big fountain putting their heads out of the water trying to entice him to follow them to the bottom. The queen of Sheba was waiting for him, they said. He was found at the Palais Royal dragging a live lobster along at the end of a blue ribbon. He tried to fly like the birds, and one day at a moment, in one of the streets of Paris, when he waited with his arms spread out for his soul to mount to a star, he was gathered in by a gendarme "because he had prepared for this ascension by taking off his terrestrial garments."

Freaks of Men of Genius.

Baudelaire dyed his hair green. He was an epicure of odors, and used to say that his soul soared upon perfumes as the souls of other men soared upon music. One day after throwing a traveling glazier downstairs and breaking every pane of glass Baudelaire exclaimed: "The beauty of life! The beauty of life." He declared later that he experienced at that moment an "infinite joy," because he was not yet insane, at least, not officially so.

The case of Alfred de Musset, who was "restless visionary and slightly maniacal," is most interesting. In the Cafe de la Regence it was his habit to order a plate of cigars and a frightful mixture of beer and absinthe, which he would swallow in a gulp. Then De Musset would settle himself solidly against the back of the divan and light one cigar after another until the plate was empty. At half-past eleven the waiter would hail a cab, lead the poet by the arm, and put him safely into the vehicle. He would let himself be taken quietly to his house, where his old nurse put him to bed like a child.

Even the great Napoleon had his particular brand of insanity. He believed in presentiments and horoscopes, as is well known, and Prof. Grasset says further he "suffered from a habitual twitching of the right shoulder and of the lips." Zola used to count the number of gas jets in the streets, the numbers on the doors and chiefly the numbers on cabs. Balzac had an ambulatory mania. One evening, when he had put on a handsome new dressing gown, he wanted to go into the street with it on and with a lamp in his hand to excite the admiration of the public. Schopenhauer always suspected that he was possessed of a demon. He said he could feel it within him. He used to pass entire weeks without speaking to anybody. Swift announced in his youth that he would go mad, and, as a matter of fact, he did.

Some Curious Hallucinations.

Edgar Allan Poe drank, as Baudelaire has said, "like a savage." He was subject to the most horrible hallucinations. Haller, the celebrated physiologist, believed he was being continually pursued by enemies. He took enormous doses of opium. Newton became insane in his old age. Beethoven, who always washed in ice water, "would lift it up with his hands, scolding all the while, and dash a quantity of water on his face and his hair without noticing that it made a pool on the floor, in which he splashed about like a duck."

In connection with Prof. Grasset's work it is interesting to note that Dr. Henry S. Atkins of the St. Louis Asylum for the Insane has recently been putting a theory of his own to a practical test. He has been sending insane women out in small parties to visit the department stores and particularly the bargain counters to do some shopping. The insane women were in charge of keepers, but gave no trouble. The patients purchased with a keen regard of appearance and value, just as their normal sisters were buying all about them. Apparently the saleswomen noted nothing unusual in their demeanor.

Dr. Atkins said that such recreation as that afforded by a day in the stores is a valuable part of the treatment for the insane. Just as normal persons are better merry than moody, so, he says his charges are improved by anything that pleasantly occupies their minds while not at the same time exciting their nerves.

AND THEN HE WENT AWAY.

Money for His Sandwich Could Be Found in Slot Machine.

A man with an eight-day beard, which grew listlessly over his features in unrestrained fashion, wandered into a modest little restaurant. It was one of those places where one can buy a light lunch, and if he is musically inclined can drop a coin in the music box and have classical or popular melodies to soothe him while eating.

The man with the eight-day beard looked first at the lunch counter and then at the big music box. Then he looked at the three or four small coins which he had drawn from his pocket. He had a hankering for music, and he decided to go and tackle the throat of the musical machine with a five-cent piece.

But the nickel got lodged in the esophagus of the machine and there wasn't a note to be heard. The man gave the machine a shake, but still it didn't swallow the nickel.

Then the man went over to the counter and bought a roast-beef sandwich. He ate it leisurely until the last bite was stuffed into his countenance. The man behind the counter came up with an expectant air

With ihs mouth still partly filled with the sandwich, the man eating pointed his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of the machine. "You'll find the money for this in there," he explained.

And then he went away.—New York Press.

WIPED ENGLAND OFF THE MAP.

Unexpected Result of a Dinner Given by a British Diplomat in Bolivia.

"Bolivia is the only country that ever wiped England off the map," said Frank Roberson. "It came about this way: The British ambassador several years ago gave a dinner for the official and social circle people of Bolivia.

"When they arrived at the embassy they found that he was not married to the woman seated at the head of the table and they left. In the name of his government he demanded an apology, whereupon the government gave him 24 hours to get out of the country.

"Inasmuch as little Bolivia is way off the ocean and practically lost in the eternal mountains Great Britain could not, by guns, get the retraction that she wanted. But her mapmakers got revenge by issuing maps wholly eliminating Bolivia.

"Finally this information reached Bolivia, whereupon, with a stroke of the pen, new maps were ordered for the Bolivian government and the Bolivian schools. They showed more ocean than any other maps ever printed. The British isles had been sunk into the sea. And so far as the people and school children of Bolivia are concerned there is no Great Britain."—Indianapolis News.

Ice in Dentistry.

The first use of ice in dental operations was in what the public term the "freezing system." This application is still in use in provincial towns, but it has for several years past been discontinued in London and other large cities.

The first use of ice in this way was in America. The ice was cut up fine, placed in small bags so shaped as to fit each side of the jaw and the wretched patient held these in his mouth until the desired temperature was reached, when the operator extracted the offending molar or molars.

To-day cold air is pumped into the mouth with more effect and without any of the pain and inconvenience that must have attended the more primitive style. Iced water is always used by dentists in America, but is never used anywhere else.—Ice and Cold Storage.

MUST MATCH DRESS

SHOES AND STOCKINGS FOR EACH COSTUME.

Footwear To-Day an All-Important Detail in Modern Dress—Dainty Embroidered Slippers with the Tea Gown.

Shoes and stockings are all important details in modern dress, and a glimpse into the shoe closet of the fashionable woman is disheartening indeed to the woman of moderate means and a love of dress. These are the halcyon days for the woman with an average sized foot, for bargain sales in footgear are bargain sales indeed. When it is possible to afford to have shoes made to order it is far more satisfactory to do so, but there is such a wide range of sizes and styles to be found in all the large shoe shops that it is not necessary, nor in fact desirable, to slavishly follow any dictate of fashion anent the pointed or square toe, the wide or narrow sole, the low cut low shoe or the fancy slipper to be worn in the street with elaborately embroidered stockings. Again, good breeding is to be noticed. The well bred, well gowned woman will not be conspicuous. If she can afford it she will wear silk stockings—plain ones, with perfect fitting, well cut boots or shoes of well polished or patent leather with her tailor gowns—but she will not go about in public streets with her feet shod as for a ball. The elaborate style of gown worn for the afternoon reception, the tea gown, the theater gown and the ball gown, all demand, in these luxurious days, elaborate footgear, as shown in our illustration. Suede shoes to match the color of the gown and silk stockings to match the shoes are considered smart for the spring and summer.

For winter the patent leather, worn with open work or embroidered silk stocking, is considered correct. For the tea gown are the daintiest of embroidered satin slippers, like mules, with stockings to match, while for the ball gown are satin or kid slippers, embroidered in crystal or rhinestones or pearls, with silk stockings to match, or instead of the embroidery will be seen tiny bows of lace or lace edged ribbon. Gold or silver slippers are also fashionable and are certainly effective, while a rather startling note is struck in the bright red satin slippers with tiny rhinestone buckles and worn with silk stockings of exactly the same shade of red.

Marabou Feathers.

Because marabou droops but does not absolutely wither when exposed to dampness, its value as a hat trimming is greatly appreciated, and in many instances it is being substituted for ostrich tips. Or it is used to eke out the more costly plumes so that an elaborate hat of the picture order may be sufficiently fluffy in appearance. Sometimes the marabou edging is combined with heavy lace bands as a trimming for the lace-crowned hats, thus giving them a more substantial appearance when supplemented by marabou-edged lace boas of the same color.

FRILL OF RIBBON ON GOWNS.

Touch of Pompadour Used to Break the Monotony.

To break the monotony of black lace evening gowns a frill of pompadour ribbon is being used, just under the lace at the front.

This is a charming idea and one that will make black gowns appropriate as costumes for young women.

One French gown of black chiffon is entirely lined with pompadour silk, with a black background and the roses showing with elusive color through the outer folds of the chiffon, makes the dress beautiful in the extreme.

The same idea may be carried out for a young girl in white, using either thin crepe, China silk or chiffon cloth as in outer covering. A wide belt of ribbon to match the lining makes a most girlish dress.

No more useful garment could be included in a trousseau for debutante or bride than a princess slip of pompadour silk. It is charming when worn under lingerie gowns in summer or under crepe and chiffon in winter.

Pompadour is also beautiful when lining an opera coat or cape. One of the newest evening capes is of pink panne velvet lined with flowered silk and bound all round by a band of velvet embroidered in pink and gold.

Smart Tub Dress.

The girl who intends to have something stylish and out of the ordinary, will make the skirt of her tub frock from white linen and the coat from pink or blue, and braid each in self colors. Carrying out the same idea in woolen materials the coat will be of a darker shade than the skirt, even though the colors be the same.

Before the material is stamped the coat should be finished with the exception of lining and facing, and the skirt completely finished. By so doing the design can be arranged in exactly the position desired and the effect will be much more satisfactory than if first braided and then made up.

The cuffs and collar of the coat are braided before attached. If the garment is of tub material, it should be laundered before worn.

To iron it, have well-padded board and lay the skirt right side down. With irons as hot as can be used, without scorching, press material until perfectly dry.

Grace Through Dancing.

No child should begin toe dancing until 12 years old, but much of the art can be learned before that and through dancing a little girl acquires a grace, a poise and freedom of movement which stands her in good stead during the awkward age as well as for the rest of her life.

WEAR THE SEPARATE JACKET.

Garment Will Be a Feature of the Coming Season.

Quite a feature of the coming season's fashions will be the separate tailor-made cloth jacket, made for wearing with odd skirts and simple frocks in light weight cloth, pongee, etc. For some seasons past it has not been fashionable to wear separate jackets except of silk or lace. The jackets have all been made to match the skirts, and when a coat of different material has been used it has been a top coat quite long, or at least three-quarters, and loose in build, whether made of cloth or silk.

But the new fashions show a very definite place for the tight-fitting separate tailor-made coat of cloth, such as is shown, a tight-fitting cutaway with very little trimming, and that little of the most severely tailored order.

White cloth is most attractive in these separate tailored skirts. It may be used with stitching or braid of the same material for its only garniture, but the smartest coats have collar and cuffs of black velvet. The only style of coat which is most successful in this severe development is a double-breasted cutaway, not very long, and having only a slightly cutaway effect, not sharply shaped at the bottom only, but curving beautifully from the top of the front to the bottom.

A little braid is used in conjunction with the velvet on the collar of the coat, but on many of the most attractive models the braid is not otherwise employed.

Will Coarsen the Hair.

While lemon used in the egg shampoo is excellent for the scalp, the use of the pure lemon juice on the hair is apt to coarsen it and make it stiff and unmanageable.

INDIANS HARD AT WORK FOR THE SPRING EVENTS

Coach Warner of Carlisle School Has Arranged Event to Exploit Famous Redskins.

Coach Glen S. Warner of the Carlisle Indian school has announced his field and track schedule for the spring. The events as arranged will give good scope for the exploitation of the famous redskins.

For the 100-yard dash, Mount Pleasant, the world-famous quarter-back, will be a leading candidate, as Rogers, last year's best man, has been graduated. The broad jumpers will be Thomas and Mount Pleasant. At high jumping, Thorpe, a coming Indian star; Thomas and Exendine will compete, and at pole vaulting, Mitchell who did well last year, will try again.

The school has lost Nicodemus Billy, who was successful at the hammer throw, and there are but few men for Warner to work on. Gardner, Afraid-of-a-Bear and Aiken will compete, however. There is no scarcity of strong material for the shot-put, as Afraid-of-a-Bear. Exendine, Thomas and Thorpe are all candidates. Schanandore, the best Indian hurdler, has also left Carlisle, but Thorpe, who has strength of an all-around variety, takes well to the hurdles. On the half-mile race list of candidates the names of Two-Hearts and Black Star, of the old team, and several new candidates appear. Corn and Hunt, both of last year's running team, will try for the mile and two-mile courses.

Several new men who have not been on the teams before, but who are expected to show up well, have been particularly encouraged by Coach Warner to run, but it is too early to note any development. The board track on the school athletic field, which has been erected at a height above ordinary snows, has been a great help in getting the men into condition.

The Indians' track and field schedule follows: April 18, annual cross-country race; April 25, relay races at Philadelphia; May 2, annual interclass meet; May 9, State College vs. Carlisle Indians, at State college; May 15, Syracuse university vs. Carlisle Indians, at Elmira, N. Y.; May 23, triangular meet, Swarthmore, Dickinson and Carlisle Indians, at Carlisle; May 30, Intercollegiate State Championship meet, at Harrisburg.

The Carlisle Indian baseball practice is going on with bright prospects. Batting and infield practice has been the order in the cage for the past two weeks. Coach Warner has cut his baseball candidates down to 30 in number. The leading candidates for the positions are: Catchers, Waseuka, James Garlow, Newashe; pitchers, William Garlow, Thorpe, Eaglemen, Miller, Pete Houser; first base, Newashe, Joe Libby, Jordan; second base and short stop, Balenti and Twin; third base, Nevins; outfield, Hendricks, Young Deer, Twin and several new men, who are liable to take to the field.

CHINESE ATHLETE A GREAT SPRINTER

EN SUE PUNG BROKE WORLD'S RECORD FOR 50-YARD DASH AT HONOLULU.

NEW MARK IS SET AT :05 1-5

Diminutive Oriental Trained in Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium After High School Hours—Record Will Not Be Recognized by Amateur Athletic Union of America for Certain Reasons.

When diminutive En Sue Pung won the 50-yard dash at the third annual field day of the Chinese Athletic club in Honolulu recently, he broke the world's record by doing the distance in 5 1-5 seconds, but his record will not be recognized by the Amateur Athletic Union of America on account of the

EN SUE PUNG '38

Honolulu clubs not being affiliated with the union. The 50-yard run is not practiced in Great Britain or the colonies, so that Honolulu claims the honor for En Sue Pung by reason of his lowering the American record. The American record for the distance is :05 2-5, and was made by Victor S. Rice of Chicago in 1904. W. D. Eaton of New York tied this record in 1905 and a year later R. L. Murray of St. Louis was also given a mark of :05 2-5. On February 20, 1904, Victor Rice of the University of Chicago, in Bartlett gymnasium, ran 50 yards on a rubber mat indoors and established the American record.

On the same day that he lowered the 50-yard record, En Sue Pung won the 100-yard dash in 10 3-5 seconds, which is only fair time for that distance. The event in which En Sue won the island championship was run off as follows: J. Woo took the first heat from C. L. Hook and S. C. Pung, in :05 4-5. John Lo annexed the second trial, finishing ahead of En Sue and L. Enpui. En Sue got a poor start in this heat. The time was :05 4-5. In the final, however, En Sue ran like a champion, beating Lo and Woo in the record-breaking time of :05 1-5. All three got off to a very good start. En Sue also won a solid gold medal for making the greatest aggregate number of points, 28, at the meet.

The Chinese in this country are justly proud of En Sue's athletic prowess, and a writer, who signs himself, "A Sojourner from Honolulu," takes exception to the many erroneous stories which are being printed about En Sue and the attempts to ridicule his methods of training. He writes:

"Judging from newspaper articles which I have recently read in the daily papers En Sue Pung's record and his routine of training are much in doubt in the minds of the Americans. His mother and father are natives of China. They are both about five feet in height and weigh between 125 and 150 pounds. En Sue is a trifle heavier and taller than either of his parents. He is at present attending the high school in Honolulu and all his training is obtained after school hours in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The Y. M. C. A. there is under the management of American graduate instructors. En Sue rides a bicycle and has a morning paper route."

There is perhaps no more abused word in the language than "athletics," and the traditional athlete has but himself to thank for the reputation his hobby has gained. For, instead of taking up the subject in a sane manner, the average aspirant for athletic honors is prone to make his hobby an idol at whose shrine he sacrifices a number of very good and very useful things. Among these are time that should be otherwise employed, money that would better be saved, and—greatest and most useless sacrifice—health.

Abuse of Athletics.

Now every one of these sacrifices is unnecessary. The boy who cannot become an athlete without squandering his allowance and his study hours on it and risking his health is not fit to be an athlete. Athletics should be a health giver, not a health destroyer, and proficiency in it is within the reach of the poorest as well as the busiest boy.

Opponents of athletics point to the fact that few professional athletes—such as pugilists for instance—live to old age, and that their constitutions collapse at a time when they should be strongest.

To such persons the best reply is that pugilism is not athletics. It is sheer, unnecessary brutality. Such "professionals" are like men who, with just enough money to live on in comfort through life, draw the whole sum from the bank, live like multi-millionaires for a few years and then collapse into penury. The "professional" uses up his strength and vital energy.

He does not make the most of it in the first place, but merely forces it by an unnatural process into a condition where it will make a show for a little while. He merely stimulates instead of nourishing it.

This is almost as bad as letting the system go altogether uncultivated.

Training Imperative.

Now true athletics does not consist in using up all one's capital in a few years, but in investing that capital in such a way as to make it bring in twice as high interest as before and to make it last as long as life lasts.

Athletics for boys is not a mere fad or a "good thing." It is a duty. That fact is realized more generally to-day than ever before. It is gradually becoming understood that the sallow, hollow-chested boy with the thin neck and the big head develops into a consumptive quite as often as he develops into an Edgar Allan Poe, and that the alert, athletic lad is far more likely to become a Roosevelt or a Bismarck than to grow into a prize fighter.

Proper and careful cultivation of the body cannot fail to strengthen the brain; nor in most cases can a quick, powerful mind inhabit a feeble, ill-tended body.

In other days the average boy took up athletics more or less against his parents' wishes. He should do so to-day by their positive orders, just as they order him to school and plan his three meals per day.

It is my plan in these lessons to show the American schoolboy how he may become a first-rate, all-around athlete without interfering with his studies, practically without cost and with permanent benefit to his general health.

If the schoolboy's parents will also take the trouble to follow these lessons they will agree that the course can be only of benefit to their son, and they may acquire a few ideas they can put to personal use.

In fact, the first steps in the American schoolboy's athletic career depend almost wholly on the parents, for they should begin before the boy is of age to go to school.

Start with Babyhood.

His education along these lines ought to begin soon after he is out of the cradle. With such a start he obviates all risk of future injury and has the average boy athlete at a sad disadvantage.

Parents who would shudder at the idea of their little one's being deprived of flannel next to the skin, or of his eating sweets between meals, utterly disregard an equally important feature of his well-being—the proper training of the baby muscles and sinews. Yet it is largely on these sinews and muscles that baby must depend for health and activity in later years.

As soon as baby can be trusted out of his nurse's arms he should be encouraged to roll about the floor, to romp and to exercise every limb. His own arms and legs are still mysteries to him. With these mysteries he should become familiar as quickly as possible.

Always remembering that the little bones are still soft and pliable and therefore unable to stand strain or fatigue, encourage baby to walk, to run, to swing the arms and to flex the awkward fingers.

Trapeze Play for 3-Year Olds.

By the time baby is three years old rig up for him in the nursery a sort of trapeze. This may consist of two canvas straps, firmly fastened in the ceiling, and of adjustable length. At the ends of the straps fasten two large rings. Teach the child to hang from these rings by his hands and to swing himself back and forth.

He will not regard it as routine exercise, but as great fun. The straps must, of course, be high enough to permit of his swinging entirely clear of the floor, upon which (if it will ease the maternal mind) a mattress may be laid.

The exercise of making the impromptu swing sway back and forth will put into motion nearly every muscle of the little body. Nor will the strain of supporting his own weight prove bad for him. He can "hang by his hands" with comfort and a great deal longer than could his grown-up brother, for even a three-months-old child can thus support his own weight with one hand.

Horizontal Bar Play.

Having accustomed the future schoolboy athlete to the simpler exercises on his trapeze (and having accustomed him to the theory of proportion, so that he knows when to lean back or forward to increase the motion of the swing), a horizontal bar may be placed between the straps.

Then, besides the swinging, the boy may be taught to "chin himself" (or draw himself up by the arms, so that the chin is on a level with the bar), and may learn to hang by hands and feet from it, drawing the feet up to it by his own efforts after he has once been taught to. Later on, even more complex exercises, such as the simpler ones taught in gymnasiums, may be added to the trapeze performance.

This trapeze work brings into play every muscle, making the tender tissues stronger and pliable, making baby graceful and self-confident.

Above all, don't let him imagine he is being made to exercise. Let him think it is a game, and praise his proficiency.

The exercises on the trapeze may appear difficult. As a matter of fact, they are mere play.

Names of States.

The name Colorado, as applied to the state, comes from the past participle of the Spanish "colorar," to color. The state is so called, probably, from its tinted peaks or from its vegetation, rich in many colored flowers.

Louisiana was named after Louis XIV. of France, 1644, by its discoverer, La Salle.

Wisconsin was named after its principal river, which in the Indian tongue means "wild, rushing river."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.
